American Legion Posts To Conduct Impressive Service At Grand View Memorial Day

ON Memorial Day, Wednesday, May 30, at Grand View cemetery tribute on a monumental scale will be paid by the American Legion Posts of Los Angeles and Glendale to their dead, seventeen Legionnaires who gave up their lives as heroes in the world war being accorded burial with full military honors.

The site which will become the final resting place of these seventeen young men who gave their best, their all, to the Nation, lying on the sunny slope of Grand View, within the shadow of the green Verdugo hills, was recently acquired by the Los Angeles Inter-Post Council of the American Legion, as a permanent memorial to those of their comrades who have "gone west," and will be so dedicated upon that historic day.

The site comprises 11,000 individual lots, where burial of all Los Angeles Legionnaires will hereafter take place. The contract entered into between the American Legion and the Grand View Cemetery officials, through Len C. Davis, president of the latter, ensures this consummation to negotiations that have been under way for two years, to secure such a site.

Parade in Morning

A parade of all ex-service men, under the auspices of the Glendale American legion post, will form at 10 o'clock the morning of Memorial Day, at Grand View avenue and Glenwood road, and will march to the cemetery, where the impressive services will take place. Commander Day, who will lead the march, is particularly anxious to have every ex-service man in the city join the ranks, in uniform if possible, but marching at any rate, irrespective of whether or not he is a member of the American Legion.

Among the prominent personages who are expected to be present are: Governor Friend W. Richardson, of California; Governor Scrugham, of Nevada, the first legionnaire to be elected a governor of a state; Congressman Walter Lineberger, Congressman John D. Fredericks, Charles Crail, judge of the Supreme court; John W. Shenk, judge of the Supreme court; Sheriff William I. Traeger; Henry W. Wright, district supervisor; Mayor George B. Cryer, of Los Angeles; Mayor Spencer Robinson of Glendale, Mayor Crawford of Burbank, together with numerous city officials, representatives of civic organizations and other prominent citizens of Los Angeles, Glendale and Burbank.

Chairman of Day

Commander Leonard Wilson of the Los Angeles Inter-Post Council of the American legion, will be chairman of the day. Seth Millington, department commander of the American legion, is expected to be present, together with other high legion officials. And American legion posts of Van Nuys, Owensmouth, San Fernando and Lankershim will be represented, together with N. P. Banks Post, the G. A. R., the Spanish War Veterans and other patriotic organizations of the various cities taking part in the ceremonies.

Those with a vision can picture in Grand View cemetery "The Arlington of the West," and Glendale is proud, indeed, that this beautiful memorial park has been chosen as the official resting place of departed legionnaires of Los Angeles, citizens feeling that it is one more close tie binding this city to the great Southland metropolis.

Memorial Day Tribute at Forest Lawn in Afternoon

On the lawn in front of the Little Church of the Flowers in Forest Lawn Memorial park, Glendale residents and friends will gather Wednesday afternoon for the final observance of the annual Memorial Day. This service will culminate a great parade of members and friends of local patriotic organizations from the business section of the city to the park.

Col. John D. Fraser, Spanish American War veteran, is marshal of the parade, and with the assistance of his committee is rallying members of all patriotic, social, religious and fraternal organizations. After organization of the units the parade will start on the line of march at 2 o'clock to Forest Lawn.

Through the courtesy of Capt. A. T. Herold of Clover Field, Santa Monica, a squadron of six government airplanes will follow the parade south to the park and circle over the Little Church of the Flowers and drop floral pieces during the service.

Rev. W. E. Edmonds, pastor of the Glendale Presbyterian church, and Rev. C. M. Calderwood, pastor of the Congregational church, will be the ministers participating in the service. Music will consist of vocal selections of Constance Balfour, and instrumental pieces by Loraine and Alberta Davis, known as "The Sammy Sisters."

The committee arranging the parade and Forest Lawn service are receiving the heartiest co-operation. Many of the veterans of American wars will be in uniform and hundreds of flags and floral pieces will combine in making the parade and gathering in the park colorful events.

Various units of the parade are to form at 1:30 o'clock. Tentative plans for the line of march are from Colorado street to Brand boulevard via Wilson avenue; then south to San Fernando road and then east into Forest Lawn Memorial park.

GREEKS AND TURKS ARE PREPARED

Ready to Clash at Any Moment in Spite of New Agreement

By LOUISE BRYANT
For International News Service

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 28.—Despite the tentative reparations agreement reached by the Greeks and Turks at Lausanne, both sides were still prepared for war in Thrace. The situation will remain unchanged until official announcement is made of acceptance of the Lausanne terms by Athens and Angora.

Turkey is prepared to begin hostilities in Thrace upon an hour's notice. Preparations were made under difficulties. Because of the Mudania armistice protocol, no formal mobilization order could be issued in Thrace. Nor could the Turkish authorities on the Asiatic side of the straits communicate with those on the European side because the lines of communication passed through Constantinople and were controlled by the allies.

Local military units made all the military arrangements on the European side, which evidently accounted for the reports that the Greek forces were better prepared for war than the Turks.

Ready for Action

Turkish officials claim that the Greek offer to accept Karaghatch in place of cash indemnity was an attempt to alienate the Bulgarians from Turkey. A puzzling side of the complications is the sudden departure of General Wrangel for Sofia. He claimed he was going to Sofia to consult Grand Duke Niklalovic, commander-in-chief of the Russian army at the outbreak of the great war. Wrangel was accompanied by high dignitaries of the Russian church.

General Wrangel has ordered all his soldiers, ranging in age from 19 to 45 to "stand in readiness for action."

General Harrington, commander of the British near east forces, conferred with Adna Bey, high commissioner of the Angora government and advised moderation in handling the Balkan situation. He told the Turks that the allied powers were opposed to war.

Glendale Elks Lodge To Initiate Tonight

Initiation will be one of the features of the regular meeting of Glendale Elks tonight at the clubhouse on East Colorado street. The meeting will begin at the usual hour and will be followed by entertainment offered in the jinks room by a troupe of seventeen colored minstrels from Pasadena.

Ray Galvin is head of the committee arranging a big athletic affair for Thursday night, June 7, the proceeds to go to the band treasury.

Several Glendale Elks are planning to attend the big feed announced by the Santa Monica lodge for Sunday, June 3, at Topango beach.

NORTH POLE IS TARGET OF RADIO

Ship to Sail on June 16 With Equipment; New Glacial Period Due?

WISCASSET, Maine, May 28.—Radio fans throughout the world will have a new target to shoot at—the North Pole, no less. Captain Donald B. MacMillan, who plans to leave here June 16 for the pole, has fitted up his sturdy little schooner, Bowdoin, with high powered wireless equipment and he plans to keep the world informed of his progress into the Arctic.

There is a possibility, experts contend, that the aurora borealis will prove a serious interference to wireless operation.

One of the purposes of MacMillan's trip is to discover whether or not another glacial period is approaching.

By JACK CEJNAR
For International News Service

CHICAGO, May 28.—Another glacial period is not coming, at least not just yet, but if it ever comes, mankind is helpless to avert it, Professor U. S. Grant, head of the geology department, Northwestern university, declared today, when informed by International News Service that Captain Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, was leaving for the North Pole June 16 to discover whether or not another glacial period was on the way.

"It has been suggested that we might possibly be in an interglacial period," Professor Grant said, "but no one is bold enough to predict that another glacial period is coming."

"It is a known fact," Professor Grant said, "that there were ages during the glacial periods, perhaps lasting thousands of years, when ice fields retreated to the north and warmer climates reigned. This has been proven by finding evidences of plant and animal life similar to that of today, near Toronto, alongside of evidence of glacial ages."

Can't Be Prevented

"Science could foretell the approach of the glacial period if it were due," Professor Grant declared, "but all the science in the world could not prevent it."

Construction of a gigantic wall on the grand banks of Labrador, if it were humanly possible to deflect the cold Arctic current, and enable the warm gulf stream to approach the East Atlantic coast, might, in the opinion of Professor Grant, mitigate the rigors of a returning glacial period.

Professor Grant scoffed at the idea that the present cold spring could have any connection with a returning glacial period.

L. A. COUNCIL IN FAVOR OF SEWER

Suitable Contract to Give Glendale Outfall Will Be Drawn Up

The Los Angeles City Council this morning indicated that it looks with favor upon Glendale application for permission to connect with the outfall sewer.

After some discussion, a motion was passed instructing City Attorney Jesse E. Stephens to draw up a suitable contract within two weeks for the consideration of the legislative bodies of both Los Angeles and Glendale. While no formal action was taken, practically all members of the Los Angeles City Council indicated that they are "agreeable" to the signing of such a contract provided it embodies the terms offered by the local city administration.

The plan submitted called for the construction of a forty-eight inch trunk line from about Colorado street south on San Fernando road to Los Angeles river, and then along the river bank to Sixth street. Eagle Rock, the Atwater tract, Lankershim and Van Nuys are to have the privilege of connecting with it without cost.

Glendale was represented at the session this morning by Mayor Spencer Robinson, and three other members of the City Council: C. E. Kimlin, W. A. Horn and Asa Hall. City Manager W. H. Reeves and a large number of representatives from the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations also attended the meeting.

In all, about fifty persons were in the Glendale delegation. Talks were made in behalf of the city by Mayor Robinson, C. H. Toll and Mattison B. Jones. They made strong arguments, it was declared by members of the local delegation.

BANDITS DIVIDE IN TWO FACTIONS

Prisoners' Situation Still Unchanged as Captors Debate Next Move

By EDNA LEE BOOKER
For International News Service

SHANGHAI, May 28.—The Chinese bandits at Paotzuku who hold 15 foreigners, including several American prisoners, as well as 100 Chinese, have divided into two factions, according to advices from Lincheng today.

One faction is willing to mediate an agreement for the release of their foreign captives while the other faction is so hostile that they fired upon a mediating party coming to confer on terms. Fortunately none were injured.

The situation as a result of the deadlock of the two bandit factions remains in practically the same state it has been since the foreigners were kidnaped 23 days ago.

No reports of additional clashes between the government troops and the bandits has been received although heavy reinforcements have been brought up and more are arriving.

In addition two airplanes from Pekin have arrived in response to the request of Tuchun Tien of Shantung province, who favors securing release of the prisoners by force.

According to latest advices from Tsao Chwang the negotiations of J. B. Powell, American newspaper man, have proven fruitless. Powell was permitted to come out of the bandit stronghold under heavy escort and returned with new terms from the Chinese government.

BALDWIN CHOSEN AS TORY LEADER

Bonar Law's Peace Policy to Be Jettisoned by New Government

LONDON, May 28.—Premier Stanley Baldwin today was elected leader of the British Tory party.

Austen Chamberlain and Lord Birkenhead, leaders of the "moderate" faction and members of the former coalition government of David Lloyd George, refused to attend the party meeting.

Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, secretary of war in the Lloyd George cabinet; Sir Robert Horne and Sir Ernest Pollock were among those present.

In accepting the leadership Premier Baldwin pleaded for unity in the Tory party.

"I will not throw any fagots in the fire," he said.

Aggressive Policy

As the new government of Premier Stanley Baldwin began to function today it was reliably reported that the "tranquility policy" of former Premier Bonar Law will be thrown overboard. It will be supplanted by a policy of "red-blooded aggression," especially in foreign affairs.

REALTY MEN WILL HOLD BIG JINKS PICNIC

Members of Local Board and Families to Frolic on June 16

PLANS for the Glendale Realty Board's Jinks Day are rapidly rounding into shape under the direction of W. L. Twining and his committee, who promise the members that the day will be one solid round of enjoyment from start to finish.

Assisting Mr. Twining, who is chairman of the jinks committee, are Mayor Spencer Robinson, C. D. Thom, president of the board, "Elsa Jane," Dr. Jessie A. Russell, Peter Hanson, W. A. Horn and Fred Johnson, each of whom is, in turn, head of a sub-committee that is working to make the occasion a success.

The outing, which is confined to members of the Glendale Realty Board and their families, will be held Saturday, June 16, at the old Verdugo park, now the Haddock-Nibley park, and will last from 3 p. m. until midnight, as the program that has already been drawn up is replete with entertainment of varied kinds that will keep everyone in a good humor for at least that length of time.

List of Events

The main events that will be staged will be a ball game that promises to be a riot; a big dinner that will place before the guests dainties of sea and of land; campfire stunts, dancing, and a mysterious half hour that is being left in the hands of the women members of the board. During the evening a special program, prepared with a single eye to the enjoyment of the younger members of the board and the guests, will be presented, and here again a lot of mystery is thrown around the plans by the members of the committee, who are working in silence as to the details that they intend to embroider the occasion with.

The prime object of the Jinks day is to bring the real estate men and women of Glendale into closer social relationship, and to break the ice that so frequently prevails at an affair of this kind. Mr. Twining says that formality will be thrown to the winds from the minute the crowd gathers in the park, and everyone will be made to feel that it is just one huge family picnic, where the main object is the enjoyment of the occasion.

Full details of the program will be announced from time to time as they are completed by the committee, but an air of mystery will enshroud the main features until the moment when they are sprung on the members present.

A threatening situation arose at Bochum where anti-red Germans formed a committee of defense to put down the communist movement. A clash between the opposing forces was feared.

The guests enjoyed a most delightful trip coming west, and made a stop at the Grand Canyon en route. They will participate in the pageant of states that will be held tomorrow afternoon on Patterson field, at Occidental college. They will be guests at the Cunningham home for a week or ten days.

Knights' Guests

The old woman who lived in the shoe may have had so many children that she didn't know what to do, but her predicament was no problem at all compared to that of Glendale Knights of Columbus Saturday afternoon, when they had over 400 kiddies respond to the invitation to the party.

Each little guest was presented with a gay colored balloon and these were much in evidence during the afternoon's entertainment.

Through the courtesy of Harry Girard a splendid program was presented, including vocal numbers by Myra Lee, soprano, accompanied by Alberta Bowling; songs by Katie Girard, eleven-year-old artist; recitations; and entertainment by members of the Fittenger family, who have come recently from Detroit.

Mrs. Fittenger served as pianist and there were violin numbers by Corinne Fittenger; cello numbers by Earl Fittenger; whistling by Mary Ellen Fittenger; and popular songs by Geraldine Fittenger.

A dog show and the serving of Eskimo pies closed the jolly time.

One of the impromptu features of the afternoon was the clever little dance by Margaret Rita Smith, tiny two-year-old daughter of Jesse Smith. It was during a lull in the program that little Miss Smith tripped out on the floor and executed a graceful little dance number that brought forth prolonged applause.

There were over 125 couples present for the grown-up "kid" party Saturday night. All appeared in juvenile costume and enjoyed dancing to fine music by the five-piece orchestra.

Rush to Assistance Of Transport Adrift

MANILLA, May 28.—The minesweeper Henderson this afternoon was rushed to the assistance of the drifting United States transport Merritt, following a strike of the Russian crew 600 miles north of Olangapo.

The Merritt, with 585 Russians aboard, left Olangapo three days ago for the United States, her passengers being the remnants of Admiral Stark's "white fleet" which fled Vladivostok more than a year ago.

On the ship, in addition to the Russian refugees who are proceeding to the United States in expectation of finding a permanent home, are only a few officers and soldiers, the Russians having been expected to man the ship and do all work in connection with the voyage.

It is believed possible here that the strike may have been confined to the stokers and engine crew.

That more watchsprings break during the summer months is not due to the heat but to the moisture, according to recent tests.

'ARID' WORLD IN 20 YEARS SEEN

Prohibition Crusader Says Universal Tendency Is to Abolish Booze

By DOUGLAS G. TINSLEY
For International News Service

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 28.—A "bone dry" world in twenty years is the prediction of William Eugene "Pussyfoot" Johnson, storm center of hundreds of strenuous temperance battles and head of the World Alliance Against Alcoholism.

"The liquor situation is getting better," Johnson said recently when he dropped off in Kansas City for a few hours. "Every country in the world is watching America. Again and again is her eighteenth amendment cited at national conferences here and abroad. Even the Moslem leaders in Egypt are looking with approval on liquor prohibition. Within twenty years, I believe, the world will be liquor free, and glory be that day!

"Just now everyone is throwing up his hands and declaring that there is more liquor than ever before. I suppose they do not know that virtually all the institutes which formerly were operated to cure drunkenness have been closed on account of lack of business. Probably they do not understand that the last congress which just closed its sessions was more than two-thirds dry—the driest congress in history.

"Again, we cite this fact: During the three years of liquor prohibition the enforcement of this law has been stronger and stricter than the enforcement of the saloon license law was in 100 years. The hardest ridge has been passed. We grow stronger in prohibition daily."

Johnson branded as "absolutely absurd" the light wine and beer proposition. Light wines and beer are ninety per cent of the liquor trouble, he said.

Cause Drunkenness

"The people who are urging the necessity of these drinks point out that they are not injurious or over-intoxicating," he said. "Why, Alexander the Great died from drink, and he had nothing but dring never had been heard of drink never had been heard of then. All the drunkenness of the Bible times was from light wines and beer."

"Pussyfoot" has but one eye left, having lost the other in London during a demonstration not in sympathy with his propositions for abolition of the liquor traffic.

Access is readily gained to the chambers of contentment, not by contention but by desire.

CELEBRATE FIFTY YEARS OF BLISS

Half Century of Married Life Is Marked by Mr. and Mrs. Kemper

One of the most pleasurable parts of the golden wedding anniversary yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph William Kemper, of 1017 Melrose avenue was the account of the event appearing Saturday night in The Glendale Evening News under the clever heading "Fifty Years Ago—And Today," featured by pictures of Mr. and Mrs. emper as honeymooners, in 1873, and as they look today.

"Those pictures are of great interest to us said Mr. Kemper today, "particularly the one taken fifty years ago. On our honeymoon we visited relatives of mine down in entucky, and while there they persuaded us to visit a daguerrotyper's and have a daguerrotype taken.

"One of these daguerrotypes we kept all through the years. Our children played with it, but when they were grown and Mrs. Kemper and I celebrated our twenty-fifthy wedding anniversary our children surprised us by having photographs made off that old-time picture, and it was a reproduction of one of these photographs that was used for the cut appearing in the News Saturday night."

After their wedding fifty years ago Mr. and Mrs. Kemper took a long trip visiting her relatives in Indiana and Ohio, and then going on down into Kentucky for a visit with his relatives. Reminiscences of that trip include being met with horses and riding horseback to the uncle's home, and also a ride in an ox-drawn cart to a neighboring social affair. This last event was arranged as a joke by Mr. Kemper's uncle.

Gather at Dinner

Yesterday on their fiftieth anniversary Mr. and Mrs. Kemper were honored by a dinner at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Conger at 1157 North Brand boulevard. They were surrounded by their three daughters and their husbands, their four grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Kemper and their relatives received informally at the Kemper home at 1017 Melrose avenue.

The Kempers were the recipients of countless messages of congratulation, gifts and floral pieces and also entertained a company of old time friends and neighbors.

Among their relatives and old time friends present were Mr. and Mrs. Homer E. Hittle, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kemper, Mr. and Mrs. George Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Ribble, R. Toon, W. G. Power, Mr. and Mrs. S. Mendes, Mr. and Mrs. O. Farmer and daughter, Mrs. I. V. Farmer, Mrs. A. T. Dodson, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. James Brown, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. PRIEST HONORED BY CHURCH HEAD

Title of Monsignor Given in Recognition of Work Done Among Poor

A celebration that has been long anticipated by the Catholics of the Verdugo Hills and their friends took place Sunday when Father Joseph Tonello, pastor of the chapel at Tujunga, was honored as it is the privilege of but few to be honored. The degree of "Knight Chaplain of Honor of the Order of St. George" was bestowed upon him by Thomas A. Carney, C. M., acting for the authorities in Rome.

The gathering overflowed the little chapel long before the service began, among them many notables from Los Angeles and other cities, friends of Father Tonello who came to witness the ceremony and take part in the entertainment given afterwards in Manzanita park.

This is a very select dignity, bestowed by the Pope, and but one other in the United States and only thirty in the entire world have been thus honored, with the privilege of the title of "Monsignor." The degree is betowed only in recognition of distinguished and self-sacrificing services. Thomas A. Carney, C. M., of St. Vincent's of Los Angeles, officiated, and opened the service by reading the letter of investiture in Latin, received from Rome.

Father Tonello made his solemn profession of faith, following the reading of the letter. This was followed by the actual investiture, the Monsignor being clothed in the garments sent especially for this ceremony, including fine robes and vestments and the ring and cross peculiar to this order.

Then followed the procession and low mass, in which many of the Monsignor's friends took part and sang.

Thomas A. Carney, C. M., then addressed the congregation and congratulated Father Tonello on attaining this high honor. He said, in part: "His work has been recognized by the authorities appointed by God to recognize His servants' work. I know that Monsignor will carry the new dignities as he has always carried his previous ones—high and resplendent in the sight of all men."

Priest Tells of Work

Clothed in the robes which the church has given him in recognition of the work he has done, the priest spoke of his work, saying, "It is only through the co-operation of the people and the offerings of my friends that I have been able to do the things for which I have received this honor. The little chapel which I have succeeded in building here is more dear to me than cathedrals. But it is not for work done here that I have received this honor from the Pope, but principally for work done in Chicago among the poor of my own people and in other places. I have been in Tujunga for ten years and I have come to love the people and the little chapel. This honor will help me to do more good. I have not changed, but am the same as before. These vestments, of which I am very proud, do not bring me nearer to God. I will be judged by my deeds and not by my clothes."

When Monsignor first thought of coming to this country the Pope wished him to stay in Rome, but he wished to work for the salvation of souls and this desire would not allow him to yield to the wish of the Pope.

The title of Knight Chaplain of Honor of the first class is bestowed upon those who are prominent in charity work. Father Tonello said that he did not consider that it was proper for one to speak of himself, but that all might understand why the priest of a little chapel like Tujunga should receive this honor and inasmuch as Jesus had taken his own defense he would tell briefly of his work.

Sacrificed Ambition

"This honor has been given me for hard work, done mostly among my own people, the Italians. I sacrificed my greatest ambition, to be a great musician, for love of God. I have had all the hardships that a priest can have, except by going among cannibals and the far corners of the earth. I have lived in basements infested with rats and suffered cold and starvation. Not here in Tujunga, but in Chicago and other places where I have worked."

"I love children, I love youth and I am always interested in them. I have been always among the poor people, always worked and have never had a life of ease. It is the voice of the people whom I have helped that has brought me this honor. They have become Cardinals and many have returned to Rome, and it is their voices that have been responsible for the Pope bestowing this title of Monsignor."

"I worked in Chicago for years among the unbelievers, among infidels. I have done much for the Italians, and I am proud of this garb, because it is a testimony of my good work. The cross of the order has been given me, and the privilege of the title of Monsignor. The crown surmounting the cross is the crown of my country, and I love it."

After the services there was a picnic in Manzanita park, near the chapel, and several prominent artist friends of Father Tonello's entertained in various ways. There was also a ball game between the Mission Tigers and Loyola College.

Father Tonello said that God did not intend that we should have a blue Sunday, and that these little things in the way of entertainment were to chase away the blues that are sometimes gathered during the week.

Boxing Game Popular
California Athletes Win
Learn How to Play
Glendale Has Sports

By Gil A. Cowan

SECOND to baseball in the hearts of American sport fans the boxing game today has a healthy stranglehold which far outdistances tennis, football, wrestling, racing and other contests.

There is, perhaps, only one sport other than baseball and boxing in which the general public may take a hand and that is golf. Yet it does not grip the general public the way the other two do.

Baseball bugs are too numerous to mention, for you find them everywhere in these United States of ours. Fight fans come second and the golfing "goofs" go chasing the pill to their own delight, but few people enjoy hearing tell.

The average person can get interested in Babe Ruth's record of home runs, he will watch the daily scores and see how the various teams stand and go see a game when the occasion permits.

But when you talk fight talk to the average fellow he's rarin' to express his opinion, whether he knows what he's talking about or not.

It was rather amusing to "listen in" on a conversation, eavesdropping, as it were, between two fellows on a Stockton electric car the other day. Both of them were coming in from the country. As they tired of talking of the cows to be milked and remarked about the hay weather and a few other rural subjects, the pair began discussing the merits and demerits of certain kings of fistiana.

"Jess Dempsey," said one, "is a great fighter. I never could figure out, though, how he won from Jim Johnson," etc.

If you are acquainted with heavyweight title-holders, past and present, you will see how badly mixed his information had gotten by the time it left Stockton. Yet this man thought he knew something about the fight game, and he was willing to gamble his hard-earned money that Dempsey licked Johnson in Reno, just to prove he was a sport.

The fight fan is found everywhere. He demands columns of sportology regarding his favorite and forgets the information as easily as water slides off a duck's back. He likes to look at the pictures of fighting men and he will even demonstrate his favorite jab on friend wife and other innocent victims.

For the fighting surge is found coursing in the veins of almost all of us. That's the reason the game is so popular.

Athletics in California are being brought to the peak of perfection, it would seem. The state university walked away with the intercollegiate track meet at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, last Saturday, one man making more points than many of the other colleges combined.

This is the third year California's little band of stalwart athletes have carried all before them, making Harvard, Yale and Princeton, not to mention a dozen more, look to their laurels of prowess.

And there is no reason why western athletes should not win in any game they tackle. All year round they can practise; the climate is conducive to the utmost in physical development; the race of people found on the Pacific shores is hardy and cosmopolitan; and lavish support is offered all athletic events.

Every time we see the old "boys" pitching horseshoe on the vacant lot we cannot help but envy them the idle time. It must be great to have amassed sufficient of this world's goods to be able to go away for the afternoon and engage in a game of quoits, or croquet, or pinochle, or checkers, or chess.

Too many business men get no relaxation from the daily grind. All they need is to learn to play. For too much work makes Jack a dull boy.

Most of the sick folks and pretty near all of the cynics in this old world of ours are those who never learned how to play the game. Motoring, hunting or swimming are sports enjoyed by many, but there is no game involved there.

Some of the best business men and some of the cleverest geniuses we ever met are ball players.

All of which isn't funny, for it is a psychological fact that the man who can clout the ball for a home run is usually capable of finishing any job he undertakes.

In Glendale we have the usual run of school sports; two or three baseball teams, Including the Indians, Legionnaires and Caseys; the Glendale Horseshoe club; the Glendale Recreation Center, not to mention a half-dozen other activities that lend spice to the sporting columns of The Glendale Evening News.

Foreign Liquor Will Be Easy to Secure

WASHINGTON, May 28.—New regulations to govern foreign ships bringing liquor into American ports will be so broadly and leniently drawn that very little difficulty with foreign governments is anticipated by government officials, it was learned here. These regulations are now being completed by the treasury department and will be promulgated shortly.

STUDENTS STAGE COSTUME PARADE

Exhibit of School Work Is Prepared by Pupils; Pets Are Shown

Parents and friends of the grammar school children enjoyed an exhibition Friday afternoon of the pupils' work, covering the last six months of their school work, and a costume parade in which were entered the pupil's pets and toys.

The different class rooms had on exhibition their best art, composition, sewing, manual training and other studies. The walls were hung with pamphlets and folders arranged by the pupils, showing both artistic and technical talent and the thorough training they are receiving from the teachers. There are close to 300 pupils enrolled in the school this year and the results the teachers are getting are excellent and this exhibit showed results of their hard work in maintaining a high standard of instruction. They were all proud of their "children" and, needless to say, rightly so.

Before the parade started it was filmed by Jules Perronett, proprietor of the Tujunga Valley theatre and an experienced moving picture producer. This film will be shown later at the theatre and will be included in a series of pictures that will be taken of Tujunga and the valley for displaying at picture houses in Los Angeles and throughout Southern California. The parade formed on the school grounds and marched past the camera while Mr. Perronett ground industriously on the crank.

Headed by the Boy Scouts, the procession marched down El Centro street to Sunset and south to the Tujunga Valley bank building, where the judges were stationed, and drew up there in double formation for inspection. Following the Boy Scouts were the grades, starting with the first in which were entered all manner of characters. Topsies, fairies, pioneers with 'prairie schooners,' Maypole groups of girls with baskets of spring flowers, doll buggies, '49ers', a wild Indian on his pony, a teddy bear float drawn by two boys, dogs hitched to miniature wagons, decorated bicycles, clown dogs, the Gold Dust Twins, a doll stretcher bearer outfit, and one perfectly good wedding, with flower girls and all the trimmings.

Wedding Is Filmed

The wedding took place before the grinding camera operated by Mr. Perronett. Thomas Theobald was the groom and Dorothy Lane the bride. Miles Smith played the part of the minister and little Mary Theobald was the flower girl and Bernice Warner and Evelyn Taylor were bride's attendants. Esther Ellenbogen acted as bridesmaid and Willard Elsey was best man. Being very worldly wise and accustomed to display and fuss, these young people went through the ceremony without a hitch. They are all second grade pupils, except Mary, who hasn't decided yet what grade she will enter when she starts.

Margaret Reynolds represented a May Queen and rode majestically on a throne carried by three boys, where she reigned with becoming grace.

Prizes Are Awarded

Prizes were awarded as follows: Grand prize for girls, Louise Greer and Loreta Wiggins won first place as the Gold Dust Twins; Bonita Clark, second. For boys, Arthur Back, first, and Frank Silver, second.

First grade pupils, Norma Hagaman, first; Richard Podzer, second, and Dorothy Flowers, third.

Second grade, Dorothy Lane won first prize as the bride; Thomas Theobald won second as the groom, and Miles Smith third as the minister.

Third grade, Clotile Perkiser, first; Betty Fisher, second, and Joseph Sullivan third.

Fourth grade, Margaret Reynolds as the little queen and George DeWitt as the originator of the idea won first prize in this grade. Eloise Farrel won second and Charles Jenkins third.

Fifth grade, Arthur Buck, first: James McKemmon, second, and Marian Wessick third.

Sixth grade, Louise Greer and Loreta Wiggins won first prize as the Gold Dust Twins; George Thorsen won second as Daniel Boone and Paul Moulder won third prize.

Seventh grade, Hazel Hagaman and Leonad Romack won first prize, Mabel Warnish and her doll buggy and collie pup won second and Bonita Clark third.

Eighth grade, William Sessions, first; Frank Silver, second, and a group of May girls won third prize.

The judges for the entries were: Leo L. Lang, James Blaine, Miss Zoe Gilbert, Mrs. Pearl Peronnett, Wilmot Parcher and Mrs. Bloodgood.

In the evening there was an entertainment by the pupils. The eighth grade girls danced and Miss Stella Wieman presented some of the smaller pupils in a three-act sketch, entitled "The Road to Health," the purpose of which was to stress the importance of proper feeding of children to attain the best growth and development, both physical and mental.

Declamation Contest

A declamation contest was held in the new school building in which some eighteen pupils took part. This contest was promoted to stimulate the interest of the children in poetry and brought out some odd and amusing tastes in this line, as the pupils were allowed to choose their own poems. The poems written by Edgar A. Guest predominated, five of his being chosen by the young speakers.

Marian Wessick won first prize for her dramatic recitation of "The Americans Come," by Fay Foster. Her interpretation of this work was excellent, to be favorably compared with advanced students of elocution, and her audience applauded enthusiastically.

Guy Fasoli won second prize, reciting "Kelley's Dream." Peggy Thompson won third, reciting "Nothing to Laugh At," by Edgar A. Guest. Loretta Bodkins took fourth prize, "The Angel Child" being her choice, written by Dorothy Dix. Loreta Wiggins won fifth prize by reciting "Flo's Letter."

The competition was so keen and the renditions so good that the judges experienced some difficulty in choosing the winners. After considerable debate the above were chosen and the following given an honorable mention for their good work: Byron Armstrong, Hazel Haggerman, Dorothy Armstrong, Charles Furlong, Robert Mills and Tina Zitto.

The judges for this contest were: L. H. Fisher, Wallace M. Morgan, F. A. Graham, Ira H. Nance and M. E. Hill.

Refreshment booths were in charge of the ladies of the Parent-Teacher association. There were also flower booths. The funds derived from these sales will be used for a school library or some other needed improvement in the school.

Prize-Winning Babies

The winners in the baby contest held last Wednesday afternoon were announced at the evening entertainment by Dr. Saphro of the Los Angeles County Health department, who examined and measured the babies between the ages of three and six years.

William Anderson, Jr., won the blue ribbon first prize with a score of 97 7-10 points, almost a perfect score. William is three years and four months old and has been winner in other contests, receiving a score of 99 8-10 in one.

Ester Haggerman won second prize, the red ribbon, with a score of 97 1-10, a close second to young William.

Third prize was won by another young lady by the name of Jewel Cavolt, who received a white ribbon for her score of 96 8-10 points.

Dr. Sahpro spoke briefly of the purpose of these contests, which is to give particular attention to the 'pre-school' age children, that they may enter school in the best of health. Dr. Saphro stated that this is the age generally neglected, as the children are considered past the baby age and ready to just 'grow up,' waiting to enter school, and is the age when they should be watched properly. As brought out by the play staged by the youngsters, milk is a very important item in carefully to see that they develop the diet of babies, as well as grown ups.

The mothers are urged to turn in the names of their children who are about to enter school to Miss Wieman, the school nurse, and some time between now and the opening of school next term they will be examined and their physical condition passed upon.

Women's Club Meets

The Women's club met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Mark White on Monte Vista boulevard and enjoyed a literary program, arranged by Mrs. Frank Scoville and Miss Zoe Gilbert. One very enjoyable feature of the program was Miss Gilbert's personal reminiscences of James Whitcomb Riley and his works. Miss Gilbert at one time lived in Indianapolis, Riley's home.

Miss Wallace of Pasadena rendered several whistling solos, accompanied on the piano by her mother. Mrs. Snow of Sunland sang two of Riley's poems that have been set to music, and a general discussion of his works followed, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Cozad entertained a family of relatives from Santa Ana over the week-end. The father and mother have disposed of large holdings there and may locate in Tujunga permanently.

Glendale Men Will Attend Military Camp

Far Hawaii will be represented at California Citizens' Military Training camps at Del Monte, July 26 to August 24, Colonel Erneste V. Smith, who will command the camps, announces. He has just received authorization from the war department to include selected young men from Hawaiian Territory with 1,000 Californians at summer training camps.

Every county in California will be represented. Here are the names of those tentatively or finally accepted from Glendale: James W. Ulmer, George R. Harrison, John F. Parris.

The camps are conducted by Uncle Sam as part of the national defense program and are designed to stimulate patriotism, develop a higher physical standard among young men of the nation and inspire better citizenship. They are open to physically-fit young men between the ages of 17 and 24 years, and carry no obligation for further military service.

Colonel Smith says vacancies are being filled at a rapid rate and he urges young men who want to enjoy this 30-day vacation and training, to rush their inquiries or applications to Headquarters Ninety-first Division, Presidio of San Francisco immediately. Camps are free. The war department furnishes transportation and pays all expenses.

SELECT SITE OF BOY SCOUT CAMP

Committee Inspects Angeles Forest Reserve for Summer Location

"The Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills District will have one of the finest sites in the Lake Arrowhead region for their summer vacation camp," stated Frank C. Ayars, chairman of the Committee on Camping this morning.

Early last Saturday morning a party of business men comprising, in addition to Mr. Ayers, Peter L. Ferry, A. R. Eastman, Roy L. Kent, Francis J. W. Henry, and George Bentley, of Glendale; Dr. Frank C. Tillson, Dr. E. H. Wilson and E. B. Thomas of Burbank; and Leo L. Lang of Tujunga, left for Lake Arrowhead in the Angeles National Forest for the purpose of selecting a site for the 1923 Boy Scout Summer Vacation Camp. The party was accompanied by Scout Executive Harold F. Benner.

Several prospective sites were looked at, but the one seeming most ideal for a Boy Scout Camp consists of approximately a three acre flat at the intersection of Bear and Hook Creeks. Trees are very plentiful and the water is cold and pure.

On their return to Glendale the party met with an exciting and dangerous experience when they were called upon to help fight a raging forest fire which was subdued before evening.

The official camp announcement according to Mr. Ayars will be made the latter part of this week.

Were it not for the observance of outward decency many a man would run wild.

MILLIONS AWAIT MISSING HEIRS

Unwilled Fortune Left Thirty Years Ago Compounds Into Great Sum

By JACK CEJNAR
For International News Service

CHICAGO, May 28.—Where are the heirs of Abraham Horowitz, whose fortune, left unwilled thirty years ago, is now reported to have grown, through compound interest, to a staggering total larger than the foreign debt of Poland.

From all over Europe come answering cries every five years or so, with a recurrence of the golden fleece yarn.

Weird stories of the fabulous mountains of gold said to be held in trust in Chicago for the unknown heirs, for whom the American authorities are reported to be searching, have once more spread through Central Europe, particularly in Poland, from where Horowitz is said to have emigrated.

Gripping descriptions of the wealth which is "merely" awaiting the appearance of Horowitz's relatives were recently again published in Jewish newspapers in Poland.

Becomes Millionaire

"It is already over thiry years," the Polish journal Haint reported, "since, in Chicago, died a man called Abraham Horowitz. He came from Yanow, Poland, to America and became a millionaire. He died and left a fortune which will now reach, together with the interest, the sum of $180,000,000. In Polish marks it would be not less than seven trillion and two hundred milliards. The legal heirs are Jews, who live now in Zaglembie, Czenstochau, Petrikov and Lodz. Among them are very near relatives of the dead millionaire. One of the chief heirs is a rabbi, in Chortkov, Poland. In Czenstockau there is one heir by the name of Shloime Horowitz, a baker, who claims to be a nephew of the dead Horowitz."

The newspaper Lodzer Tageblatt reports that all the claimants of this fortune will convene this summer, in Warsaw, and select a delegation to send to Chicago to attempt collection of the fortune.

Huge Sum Awaits

Another publication—the Czenstochauer Arbeiter Zeitung—is the authority for the statement that one of the Polish lawyers who is busy with all the official formalities and who is active in collecting the $180,000,000 for the Polish heirs, is the famous lawyer Stawsky, in Warsaw.

The Lit declares: "It would be necessary to take into consideration that the $180,000,000 waiting for the Horowitz heirs is a greater sum than all the debt which the Polish government owes to foreign nations. The money would improve the course of Polish currency. The Polish government should, therefore, become interested and help the heirs to collect this fortune, which has already waited for them 32 years."

But where, in Chicago, rest those crates of heavy, sparkling gold or the gilt-edged securities that the frugal Horowitz accumulated, but could not take with him?

BRITISH STILLS PROFIT HEAVILY

Direct Exports to America Fall Off, But Illicit Trade Flourishes, Claim

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDONO, May 28.—Amazing statistics published here show that British distilleries are profiting greatly from American prohibition.

Whereas the direct exportation of liquors and spirits to the United States has decreased from 1,311,000 proof gallons in 1913 to 29,000 proof gallons in 1922, the indirect exports have increased nearly 500 per cent. In 1913 the export of spirits from the British Isles to the British West Indies and the Bahamas were 93,000 gallons, whereas in 1922 the export of these products was 516,000 gallons.

At the present rate of export it appears that the United States during 1923 will import, via the Bahama smuggling route, nearly 1,400,000 gallons of spirits from the British Isles. This represents thirty per cent proof liquor, which will probably be so diluted that it will be sold for nearly 3,000,000 gallons by the time your favorite bootlegger and his friends have finished doctoring it.

British Worried

Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs McNeill admits that Great Britain is worried over the liquor smuggling from its West Indian possessions, fearful lest this will bring about a diplomatic impasse between the United States and Great Britain.

While the liquor exports to the West Indies are steadly increasing they are falling off in other quarters. The total exports in 1922 were 5,701,000 gallons as compared with 10,090,000 gallons in 1913.

The consumption of liquor in the British Isles is rapidly on the decline, statistics show. The consumption per capita during the past year in England and Wales was twenty and one-tenth gallons of beer as compared with twenty-three and nine tenths gallons in 1921—thirty-six-hundreths of a gallon of spirits as compared with thirty-nine-hundredths in 1921. A slight increase was shown in the per capita consumption of wines.

In England and Wales the per capita annual expenditure on liquors is estimated at $2, while in Scotland it is $1.75, and in Ireland it is about $1.60.

Wages Decreased

The falling off in the consumption of liquors in the British Isles is not necessarily attributed to any great wave of temperance reform, but instead it may be laid at the door of unemployment and lower wages. The wages of 7,600,000 working people during the year decreased approximately $21,000,000 a week, and this is undoubtedly one reason why less money was spent for drink.

The British government profited handsomely from its taxes upon the liquor traffic, the amount of these taxes totalling about $800,000,000. Unfortunately for the British Exchequer the liquors exported to the United States netted no tax profits.

BLAME SUICIDE ON MORNING AFTER

Late Suppers, Omission of Cold Tub, Blamed for Waking Depression

LONDON, May 28.—Is the "early morning feeling" responsible for suicides?

That is the question that is vexing all the leading English physicians, brain specialists and coroners at the present time.

At an inquest Dr. Edwin Smith remarked that suicides were much more frequent in the morning than later in the day. "This fact is no doubt due to early morning depression, which causes people to feel their troubles much more acutely," he added.

"The early morning feeling is growing," said another physician "Late suppers, which are superfluous after any kind of dinner; closed windows, uncomfortable beds, the omission of the cold tub—these are all contributory causes to early morning depression.

Moral: Keep Health

"People who live busy, healthful lives in the country seldom feel unable to meet each other at breakfast. But I know many families whose members feel incapable of meeting at breakfast and whose first meal of the day consists of a cup of tea and a cigarette in bed.

"Another cause of the early morning depression is the unattractiveness of so many English bedrooms. The best rooms of the house should always be made into bedrooms, and they should not be crowded with furniture. Waking up in a sunny room, with bright walls and curtains, is in itself a tonic."

Other doctors, commenting on "the early morning depression," say that this effect is more pronounced in normally healthy people, as those suffering from neurasthenia usually feel at their worst at night.

VERDICT OF MURDER

A patriotic color scheme was carried out very prettily in decorations of red, white and blue, and in the favors and refreshments. Doctrine of Trinity Ask Reverend Spirit

"Belief in the Trinity asks of us a deep spirit of reverence," remarked Rev. Philip K. Kemp yesterday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church.

"Our doctrine of the Trinity does not exhaust our knogledge of God," he continued, "but merely says this is the thought which has been revealed in the experience of Christian people.

"There is another aspect of our thought bout the Trinity besides what we ordinarily consider and that is that the doctrine fills us with a sese of the mystery of God. To us, a religious people, comes the tremendous thought, on the one had, of the majesty of God, His omnipotence, and, on the other hand the love of God as revealed in Jesus Christ. This is the myster of God. The physical wonder of life is counterbalanced by the spiritual. 'Holy, holy, holy, Lord God almighty!' is balanced by 'God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten Son.'

Dr. Funk Preaches on Secrets of Success

Eighty per cent of the men who are 65 years of age or over are either totally or partially dependent, according to Dr. H. C. Funk who spoke yesterday morning at the First Lutheran church upon "Secrets of Success."

"The sea of life is strewn with human wrecks," he remarked. "Who is there among you who can say: 'I have never failed'?

"Many start out in life with fair promises and lofty ideals. Alas, they do not persevere until success has been attained. Men may have power and wealth, they may be cultured and refined and yet fail most miserably.

"Men fail first because they have never learned of Him who never failed. In short, they do not love, trust and obey God. Secondly, they fail because they do not observe the command to love your neighbor as yourself. They have assumed the wrong attitude toward their neighbor. They curse and damn the world and look upon other men as enemies.

"Let a man assure others that he trusts and obeys God and he will be surprised to find that his confidence begets confidence in others and that his little world has been transformed.

HUNTLEY BETTER, RELATIVES TOLD

Injured Man Thanks Friends For Many Inquiries Since Accident

That John G. Huntley is very much better was the encouraging report received by relatives and friends today from the Glendale Research hospital, where he has been suffering for almost two weeks from serious injuries caused by a fall from his horse Thursday, May 17.

When he was taken to the hospital it was found that he had suffered a broken pelvic bone, which had punctured the intestine. His condition become so grave that Dr. T. C. Young of Glendale, Dr. Welbourn of Los Angeles, and other specialists deemed an operation necessary and it was performed at an early hour Saturday morning, May 19.

Since that time, while no alarming complications resulted, Mr. Huntley has suffered much and his condition remained the same for days. However signs of improvement were noted yesterday and the report of encouragement made today.

Mr. and Mrs. Huntley sincerely extend their thanks to the many friends who have so kindly assisted or offered assistance and sympathy since the accident.

According to reports from the Huntley family this morning, Mr. Huntley expects to be able to see his friends in a short time.

HALT EXPOSITION ACTIVITY SUNDAY

Sacred Concert Is Rendered In Accordance With Manager's Pledge

In strict accordance with the agreement that he made when the question of closing the Industrial Exposition on Sundays was raised by the Glendale Ministerial Alliance, Director General H. L. Leavitt yesterday closed all of the concessions and only permitted the staging of the sacred concert in the evening. The exhibits in the various booths were, of course, open to the inspection of the public, but all activity was halted during Sunday. The action of the director general of the exposition has been warmly commended in view of the fact that his course was adopted voluntarily in order to meet the desires of the religious element of the city and in face of the fact that Sunday is usually one of the days on which the hightest attendance may be looked for at an affair of this kind.

Unbounded enthusiasm prevailed among directors of Glendale's Industrial Exposition as the attendance figures are checked up.

Estimates placed on the first night's attendance ranged from 8000 to 10,000. H. L. Leavitt, directer general for the event, made the more conservative estimate, while other directors were responsible for the latter.

Praises Exhibitors

It was pointed out that, due to the large number of passes issued to exhibitors and their clients, it is impossible to determine the precise number of persons admitted to the big tent. Reports of paid admissions will be made later, when accurate tabulations have been compiled, it was said.

The utmost satisfaction in the exhibits was expressed by Director General Leavitt. He particularly bestowed praise on the exhibitors for the speed with which they snapped their displays into place and for the beauty and novelty expressed in the numerous booths.

"Glendale's Industrial Exposition is to be proud of its exhibitors," he said. "They have joined hands with an enthusiasm and willingness that stamps them as hustlers.

"The Glendale Evening News editions containing accounts of Mrs. Braly's death and funeral, the opening of the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse and the letters I have written have been received. I wish to thank you for your kindness and thoughtfulness. They are very much appreciated, I assure you."

EXHIBITS SHOW VARIETY OF GLENDALE INDUSTRY

Handsomely Decorated Booths Win Praises From Visitors As Magnitude Of Industrial Exposition Is Realized

The wealth of Glendale and surrounding territory's manufacturing production and sales activity is represented in consummate detail by the array of displays exhibited in the Glendale Industrial Exposition, which this morning entered on the fourth day of its career.

Exhibits range from minute bar candies and eyeglasses to five-ton motor trucks and sections of Oregon pine logs six feet in diameter. Booths are decorated with a lavishness surpassing any previous Glendale event. The general prodigality with which the displays are arranged caused seasoned expositiongoers to gasp in amazement as they beheld color scheme ranging from resplendent ly gay hues to rich somber tones that bespeak "class" in every sense of the word.

Prominently situated before the speakers' stand is the expression of summer styles arranged by the Fashion Center. These latest ideas in milady's garb include summer frocks of the sheerest, laciest materials; afternoon garb of smartest tailoring, and a varied line of out-of-doors or sports garments. The proprietors of the store plan that frocks and other garments in their booth shall be changed frequently to add variety to their section of the exposition.

Miniature garage door hangers and equally small replicas of glass store fronts, together with an all-steel window sash, are high spots in the display of E. B. Binford & Co. of Pasadena.

White King soap offers a striking exhibit in gay colors and effective stage settings. A character man, costumed as the famed White King, occupies a central throne, and the cast for the tableau is augmented by two attractive ladies in waiting. The ermine robe worn by the White King is declared to have a valuation of $1500.

Sample pilaster round balustrades, an arch stone fireplace capable of thrilling any householder, and cement and clay tiles of various sorts strike quick responses from those who gaze on the Main Art Stone & Tile Company's display. Hammond floors also are featured in the exhibit.

Ice Cream Booth

One of the popularity centers of the Exposition is the Glendale Ice Cream Company's exhibit and serving station in the center of the big tent. Housewives are shown the various uses to which the product may be applied, and rapid sales of the delicious commodity are transacted with the passing throng.

Covering what is said to be the largest area assigned any exhibitor, the Glendale Groceteria, under direction of J. Herbert Smith and Seymour G. Smith, has arranged several of its leading sellers. These include M. J. B. rice, coffees and tea; Nucoa; Gold medal mayonnaise dressing and Challenge butters. The area of this display is said to be 60 feet in length and 20 in width.

A call to the open is sounded by Glendale Army & Navy Store. A mountain camp, with hikers and camp fire, is portrayed with all essential "props" before a scenic background executed by S. L. Jackson. W. C. Waring and Jack Huntington, Jr., are named as responsible for the well staged outlay. Participating as performers in the outdoor skit are Miss Pearl Barreck as the girl hiker and Jack Huntington, Jr., as her companion devotee of the wildwoods.

Suggestions for bungalow construction, illustrated by numerous miniature models, are attracting hundreds to the Bentley Lumber company's division. The models were constructed by pupils of the Glendale Union high school. The company is offering as a free souvenir a 50-cent booklet showing sketches and plans of distinctive homes.

Featuring the Elwood Gas Appliance company's contribution to the exposition, a drawing for a gas range suitable for household use causes many patrons to inspect the wide variety of such equipment on display. Rust proof oven linings are one of the strong talking points of the Occidental line, it is being explained in the booth.

Camera portraiture is the key not of Ralph W. Browne's exhibition. Photographs of J. C. Sherer, author of the "History of Glendale," and Mrs. Daniel Campbell, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, are winning particular notice of the crowds. Mr. Browne will alter his display daily, so it constantly offers a varied aspect. Roy Kent is in charge of the booth.

A beveled glass door, to be given away by a drawing contest, is the high light of Dixon Sash & Door Company's portion.

Twining & Myers, selling agents for Mesa Crest, have a large replica of their tract done in oils. Woodland Park, another of their subdivisions, likewise is being described in detail to homesite seekers.

Show Water Heaters

Water heaters, torn down so their various inner castings can be examined, enable visitors at the Glendale Manufacturing Company division to observe the durability of a large line of automatic storage and instantaneous water heaters. Hot water, on tap at all times, affords another novelty. Sales Manager Colin Harris is in the enclosure.

Demonstrations of an electro-magnetic blanket, said to be a cure for numerous ailments, are being given by T. H. McComsey, representative of the Electronet Sales Co.

Numerous beautiful Glendale and Bellevue bungalows are pictured in rapid and varying sequence by an automatic machine, which shifts views and affords a

The PSYCHOLOGY of CLOTHES

Bright, immaculate clothing will have much to do with your happiness, to say nothing of that feeling that comes with the satisfaction of being well dressed.

It's a psychological fact that the right sort of clothing creates a mind unhampered, a receptive mental attitude.

Thinking women give a great deal of attention to the proper sort of clothes. This does not necessarily mean the purchase of new ones—on the contrary, there is a happy medium. Many of your last season's garments can be renovated to look like new, and to give pleasureable wear at a ridiculously small cost.

THE PEERLESS METHOD

By our methods, clothing that shows signs of wear—soil and grime and stain or fade—will be transformed into serviceable garments. We employ experts in every department, who know just what to do with every fabric they handle, and what treatment is required. This is clothes protection, for dirt tears the fabric and causes premature wear.

EAGLE ROCK

PUT FIREMEN IN CITY AUDITORIUM

Sleeping Quarters Will Be Opened in City Hall At Eagle Rock

With somewhat of a shock, it has already been learned by the residents of the Eagle Rock section of Los Angeles that their fine new Spanish type city hall is inadequate for the new needs imposed upon it, and that it is planned to partition off a portion of the auditorium to make sleeping quarters for the firemen.

The new fire department consists of four men, two on the day shift and two on the night shift. It is a satisfaction to think that no longer will the police force of the section be called upon to man the fire-fighting apparatues, residents feel; but it is, at the same time, a tough morsel to swallow, that idea of partitioning off a portion of the city hall auditorium for sleeping quarters, even though the measure would be only a temporary one.

It is understood that a modern hook-and-ladder truck will be added to the present equipment in the near future, together with other supplemental equipment So there is still "balm in Gilead," it is felt.

Librarian Appointed

The Eagle Rock library board has received official notice from the Los Angeles library board, to the effect that their recommendation that Mrs. Gardiner become the librarian of the Eagle Rock branch has been adopted. The notice reads as follows:

"I am pleased to tell you that at the meeting of our library board, held yesterday, the recommendation of the Eagle Rock library board with regard to the present staff of you library, was adopted. Mrs. Gardiner will become a branch librarian in this system."

Mrs. Gardiner has been designated by the Eagle Rock library board to be the official delegate of the board, at the convention of the California Library association, held at Yosemite, June 4, 5 and 6.

Community Players Meet

Mrs. A. G. Riley presided over the monthly meeting of the board of the Eagle Rock Community Players, at which several important matters were decided.

Samuel Ratliff was authorized to sell coupon books, covering admission to each performance. Mesdames Woodhouse and Spire, and Mr. Ratliff, were authorized to draft a new constitution and by laws, at the special meeting to be held Thursday night, May 31.

At this meeting of May 31, following adoption of the constitution and bylaws, as drafted above, officers for the year will be elected.

Members of the Occidental Presbyterian Sabbath school, together with friends, enjoyed a delightful picnic at Brookside park Saturday, May 26. Trucks left the church, York boulevard and Glassell avenue, at 10 o'clock in the morning, returning at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

A society called the Woodcraft Girls of Eagle Rock has been organized with Miss Jane Butler as chief. "Blazing Star Tribe" is their particular cognomen, and they plan to meet each Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary Fiske, 203 North Castle avenue.

Miss Butler, as a Girl Scout and bugler, is very popular with her girl friends.

Thtese girls were formerly under the leadership of Mrs. A. C. Hamer, who perfected the organization."

BATTLE FIRE ON SCHOOL GROUNDS

Firemen and Students Wage Exciting Contest With Blazing Brush

The brush fires on the ground next to the school house getting beyond control caused a great deal of excitement Friday afternoon The new fire wagon and all the men who could be collected were rushed to the scene and the older boys from the school did good work. Among the latter was Edward Peck, who, unfortunately, suffered from a wrenched wrist, and burned hand, which was attended by the school nurse, Miss Barlow. After strenuous work the fire was finally gotten under control.

BOARD PLANS TO PAY UP DEFICIT

Will Seek Permission of Voters to Discharge Debt of School

The Monte Vista school trustees assembled last week at a special called meeting at the school house for the purpose of straightening out school affairs.

Mr. Henry was in the chair and had Henry Reed make a report on the financial condition of the school. This report showed a deficit of over $400 in the district. The board moved to ask the voters' permission to pay this deficit out of the special fund obtained from the premium on the bonds when sold.

The question of the legality of this action was raised, as the law requires that there be ten days' notice given for the calling of these special meetings, and in this instance there were but five. This point was discussed at some length and on regular motion the business in hand was tabled, to be resumed again at a meeting called in conformity with the regulations.

This meeting will be held on Saturday, June 9, at the school house. During the meeting Mr. Campbell resigned as trustee, leaving but two trustees for the district, Rudolph Henry and Mr. Bailey.

P.-T. A. Officers Guests

The incoming officers of the Sunland Parent-Teachers' association were entertained recently by Mrs. Viola Reed, retiring president of the organization, at her home on Walnut drive. Only a short part of the time was given to the discussion of business matters. Refreshments were served and a very pleasant social afternoon was spent. Among those present were: Mrs. Kevane, newly elected president to succeed Mrs. Reed; Mrs. Besson, treasurer; Mrs. Sanchez, recording secretary; Mrs. C. M. Buck, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Springer, historian, and Mrs. Stockton, wife of principal Stockton of the school.

Streamers of colored lights have been strung from the top of the trees in front from which the pavilion gets its name and 680 square feet of floor space is being added. This will make a total of 4620 square feet of dancing surface.

description with prices of the photographed property, in the Hayward & McCartney section. This realty firm is conducting a registration contest by which a lot will be awarded some visitor at the exposition.

A completely equipped parlor, affording a resting spot for the weary, has been contributed by Robinson Brothers Transfer Company. A replica of the warehouse operated by this company is displayed in immense proportions at the rear of the parlor.

Real Cluny hand made lace table covers adorn a well set dinner table in the Holsom bakery section. Samples of the bread are submitted to housewives. Ingrain wall paper in rich blue and gold adds a touch of harmony in the backing for the booth.

When milady at the exposition desires a manicure, she drops in at the Walcott Beauty Service show, where Laura R. Walcott is in constant attendance. Explanations of hair treatments are illustrated with all required beauty shop paraphanalia.

King Tutt Office

An impressive entrance, done in King Tut style, leads the way to the Haddock-Nibley company's division, where Rossmoyne, the "Happyland," one of Glendale's new subdivisions, is pictured by several methods of photographic and relief modelling.

"Hot water in every home" is the slogan of the Superbo Heater Sales company's offering. E. F. Hawley, who represents the line of water heaters in Glendale, has applied himself since the exposition opened to the duty of explaining safety appliances with which this heater is equipped. He demonstrates that gas automatically is shut off if the pilot light becomes extinguished.

Numerous neatly piled cans of mystic lice powder, cleanser and spray, shown by the Mystic Manufacturing company, go as evidence of another industry of this locality. Some of these products are being introduced publicly for the first time at this exposition.

Auto admirers pause invariably before the Nelson & Burr display, where latest model Kissel Kars are on exhibition. A five-passenger phaeton and an equally spacious sedan are the centers of attraction.

Realizing that the long walk around the exhibits in the biggest tent in the world will prove too strenuous for many aged persons, the Glendale Motor Car Dealers' association has supplied a neatly decorated waiting room. Here the footsore showgoers may rest in handsome furniture until ready to resume the tour of inspection.

Hooper Shows Pumps

A recent innovation in air pumps is being shown by William H. Hooper & Company, operators of a downtown filling station. A Ford tire is to be awarded by this division to some exposition patron, the winner to be determined by a registration contest.

A review of the various exhibits shown at the Industrial Exposition shows a breadth of commercial and civic interests that come as a complete surprise to most Glendalians, accustomed though they be to accounts of the progress of the city and its industrial life.

A Boy Scout first aid station, where fainting or injured persons are given emergency treatment, is housed beneath two Scout pup tents. Different organizations of the local Scouts are taking turns manning the division. Detailed out of the station, squads of Scouts are patrolling the exposition every afternoon and night.

Demonstrating their lore, another booth has been arranged by the Verdugo Hills District council of the Scouts. A model camp is shown, while on an adjacent shelf reposes a miniature bridge, which contains no metal in its construction, but which is so well built that it upholds 200 pounds. The bridge is erected after methods used by Scouts on cross-country hiking trips.

Oranges, exquisitely wrapped and packed in neat, wooden crates, are offered for sale by the Mission Orange Company of Santa Ana.

Revealing a model living room and a bedroom conspicuous for the taste with which it is decorated and arranged, the New England Furniture Company is displaying many of its latest ideas in furniture design and construction. An overstuffed living room set done in brocade is one feature, while a walnut bedroom set calls attention to the opposite side of the exhibit.

Concrete garden furniture done in a wooden block effect, a tile exterior, an art concrete table and several handsome mantel pieces illustrate the progress in cement construction and design accomplished by the Concrete Brick & Tile Company. R. E. Johnston, manager of the firm, is devoting personal attention to the exhibit.

Ever Ready automatic water heaters, with hot and cold water running into basins throughout the exposition period, are being demonstrated by the Ever Ready Heater Company of Los Angeles. This firm announces its line is handled locally by several establishments.

Styles in Photographs

Recent finishes originated in photographic production are displayed by Glenn Dolberg. Unique cards announcing his studio's qualifications are distributed by Mr. Dolberg from a booth in which numerous locally well-known persons are represented in photographs.

A rush on the Glendale State bank's exhibit for $1 checks signed by the president A. R. Eastman, has ensued. The bank has agreed to cash the checks when a $10 or larger savings account has been on deposit for six months.

Three effective window drapes mark the booth of George J. Lyons, dealer in artistic draperies. Other means of exhibiting the drapes carried in stock by Mr. Lyons consist of bars over which the stuffs are hung.

A drive for thrift is in progress from the Glendale Building & Loan Association section. W. B. Howard, O. A. Danielson and representatives of the Glendale State bank are in constant attendance.

The Hoyt Heater company is represented by a large display of interior heating appliances. Numerous demonstrations of the heaters are given each day by experts, whom the Hoyt company has detailed to Glendale's exposition for the purpose.

Enthusiasm is being displayed by representatives of the Jewel Electric company, who are showing the Schlueter line of electric washers and vacuum cleaners. Many housewives are calling daily at the booth to become initiated into the mysteries of operating these attractive labor-saving devices.

"Safe Milk" Is Shown

Availing itself of a happy thought, the Glendale Creamery company has appointed one of its best customers in charge of its booth. The customer is Mrs. Ralph Berger, who declares her experience with the creamery company's product enables her to extoll its superior qualities. Booklets entitled "Safe Milk" are being distributed.

Three powerful Moreland motor trucks, brought from the company's factory in Burbank, repose on the Grace Motor Car company's lot. Jack Prickett, representative of the firm, is performing the handshaking of the occasion as he greets old friends, who drop in to say how satisfactorily their Moreland trucks are operating.

Mercantile scales and varied styles of weighing machines, estimated to approximate a valuation of $5000, are shown by the Stimpson Scale Company of Louisville, Ky. C. R. Patterson, district manager of Glendale, puts the scales through their paces.

Three varieties of colorful window awnings are shown by W. T. Gilliam. These are brilliantly hued stripe efects, which carry the impression of color in Spanish and Egyptian chromatic combinations.

Responsible for the safety of the exposition and for protection of the crowds in attendance, the Glendale Fire Department has stationed triple combination truck No. 2, from No. 1 station in a spot from which quick runs can be made to all parts of the exposition zone. Chief A. H. Langford has detailed Dean Williams, Richard Salak, George Meyers and Ralph Plotkin to work in double shifts out of the exposition fire station booth.

Revive Blossoms

Orange blossoms that have lain dormant for six months in Blossom brand preserves are being revived and placed in water when their sealed containers are opened in the R. H. Schwinger booth at the exposition. Numerous exposition guests are instructing that friends in other states be shipped the neatly-packed orange and grapefruit preserves.

An eyeglass grinding booth and a completely equipped modern refraction room are shown by Dr. S. Stuart Steelman, optometrist. A pretty girl model reposes in an oculist's chair. Numerous lenses will be ground at the exposition during evenings by the optician, who is in personal charge of his display.

The many ways that Gordon & Harrison building materials may be utilized in motion pictures for construction work and snow scenes are vividly illustrated by a series of photos. Souvenirs in the form of prized keepsakes of famous movie stars are included in the Gordon & Harrison booth.

Samples of doughnuts, macaroons and Fuller health bread are distributed by the Davis Perfection Baking Company of Los Angeles. Persons in charge of the booth lay particular stress on the cleanliness exercised by this concern in its manufacturing process.

Representing a wide range of furniture values, Pendroy's has on display approximately $5000 worth of interior home fittings. Hoover sweepers catch the eye on entering the exhibit. A gorgeous wedding cake set on an exquisitely arranged table carries out the June bride idea, and furnishes suggestions for laying covers at wedding dinners.

Trees 500 Years Old

Shown to be from trees 500 years old, two huge log sections catch the eye at the Independent Lumber Company's exhibit. Samples of material especially adapted for taking fine polish or displaying splendid grains adorn the walls. E. F. Heisser, general manager of the company, calls attention to varnished sections of similar grains, and urges against the use of paint when interior finishing boards contain a grain and smoothness equal to those sold by his concern.

A Scotch landscape and country residence supply the background for Sierra club beverages. Fountain syrups are displayed, while rapid sales of ginger beer, ale and other bottled drinks are carried on.

Penmanship is represented at the exposition by the Standard Fountain Pen Company's display. More than a score of models are in the exhibit, and actual sales are concluded and delivery made from the exposition booth.

The Glendale Evening News booth is the official headquarters for news gathering and advertising. In constant attendance, an attache of the paper represents the two departments of a publication which come in contact with the news source and the advertiser. Chairs are placed conveniently where weary show goers may recuperate before journeying on to other exhibits.

Women of St. Mark's Guild are operating a sandwich, drink, lunch and doughnut stand, the proceeds of which are going into their organization. All of the products are home made, it is stated.

A sample, 48 inches in diameter, of the cemented interlocking sewer pipe manufactured by the Tropico Potteries for the city of Los Angeles' Santa Ana outfall causes many to pause to inspect its clever and substantial deign. Other forms of sewer pipe are on the floor and shelves of the pottery booth.

Space in this issue is lacking for a full description of the various exhibits that are on display at the exposition, but an account of all of them will be carried in the columns of The Glendale Evening News until all have been covered.

FERBER WEDDING OFFER ATTRACTS

Prospective Brides, Grooms, Ready to Appear in Public Ceremony

That Glendale has a wealth of prospective brides and bridegrooms has been proved by the many answers to the recent plea for a young woman and young man to take the leading parts in the wedding feature next Wednesday night at the Industrial Exposition.

The ceremony is being arranged by the Ferber store at 108 South Brand boulevard and will be in connection with the fashion show. As yet the choice of the bridal couple has not been made and applicants are still invited to register at the Ferber store.

The chosen bride will be the recipient of a beautiful bridal gown and veil and a bridal party will be furnished to attend her.

To the young couple goes $20 in merchandise and the only obligation of the groom will be to pay the minister.

STOLE RAILROAD

VIENNA, May 24.—Thieves have managed to set a new record by the theft of an entire railway at Kahlenberg, which ascends a steep mountain. The railroad, which was closed down several years ago with the dearth of tourists, has gradually disappeared. Officials looking over it recently with the intention of putting it into commission found only the track of a car and one of the big cogs of the funicular, which had been too heavy for the invaders.

Blessings of Poverty

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

Lon and Dolly Madison sat in their little room exhibiting their talents as actors by making a ceremony of a delicatessen dinner of slender proportions.

"Listen," the husband said, "you are small. Did that ever strike you? I am large and strong. We don't get by any too good, though I wouldn't say it to anyone else, with this patter-and-song stuff. Maybe it is because my biceps are more powerful than my thorax or because the house thinks right away I am big enough to do real work. What I am getting at is this: We must change our act. We gotta make the most of what is at hand."

The actor gave his wife careful attention. Then he shoved the table into a corner, tied a knot in the light cord to elevate the bulb, and seized her by the waist. What followed brought protests at first, and then, as Dolly realized the possibilities, something like enthusiasm. The practice continued, and Dolly and Lon on the cheap time knew they were developing a big act. There was no other man, even in the big time, who could toss his wife about as he could. It was astonishing the manner with which he caught and whirled her, balanced her by one hand or a foot.

"With the right kind of costumes and music, and maybe a little line of clever hokum, this will go over good," Lon declared, and Dolly agreed.

"Maybe, too," she added, "I could get in just one little song, somewhere."

That is how Lon and Dolly and the whirlwind act, "Supporting a Wife," got into the big time and became known to the vaudeville world. There was no more skimping of money, no more hall rooms and delicatessen meals. The successful pair had nothing but the best and were happy. Those who saw the act were certain that Dolly deserved more than the ordinary share of reward.

Fortune is as fickle with vaudevillians as with others. There came a time when the act went slow. The old snap and rush, which was so important, was gone. Lon worked harder than ever, Dolly added a shriller note to her frightened screams, but the verdict of pounding palms in front grew more discouraging.

"I guess," said Lon, "it is up to us to rehearse again on the song-and-patter. I wonder what is the matter." He looked at Dolly for a suggtstion.

"Maybe," the wife said, "you are not so strong as you used to be. It does not seem you toss me about so easily."

The big man hesitated at a difficult task. "That's just it. I am as strong as ever, but I can't lift you so easily. Dolly, now don't get angry, but you know we have been living well. Has it struck you, you have taken on weight?" He prepared for the storm.

In front of a mirror Dolly surveyed herself, blinking hard to keep back the tears which told of defeat.

"I'll have to admit it. It was our prosperity, Lon, which ruined us. I'm going to miss the old act, I am. I'm going to hate to sing after having been the sensation of the circuit. It was fun, it was—" and Dolly wept.

Next day they started work on a new act, and next season saw them back in the small time. It never occurred to Lon to get a new partner, nor to Dolly to chide him for spending so much when the money was easy. They accepted the change bravely, went back to the single rooms and the cheap meals, and tried to start a bank account.

Came a time when things looked dark and each knew nothing but some surprising new turn would keep them before the public. To make matters worse Lon received a letter from an old acquaintance, asking about the old act and offering a booking. The husband read it aloud and shrugged his shoulers.

"Lon," said Dolly, with a faint hope, "does it strike you we have been living very close?"

"Sure we have. We had to, and you've never complained—"

"Well?" Dolly was standing straight in the pose of the old act.

"This time," said Dolly, after the impromptu rehearsal was completed, "we will not let prosperity affect our appetites. You will never know how hard it was, and I never would have grown thin again if it hadn't been for the light meals."

LINES TELL FASHION'S STORY

This is a season of crepes, and the cotton and wool crepes are quite as smart and cleverly employed as are their silk relatives. Beige cotton crepe is used to develop the first dress shown here, which is trimmed with brown fancy ribbon. The sleeveless slip-over blouse has large armholes and the front is deeply cut out to accommodate a vest of self-material. The sleeves may be long or short. Medium size requires 5¾ yards 36-inch material.

The simplest possible method of achieving a clever bit of drapery is exemplified in the second frock, which simply has the right front of the one-piece skirt extended so that, when allowed to hang free, it forms a cascade at the side. Navy blue wool crepe fashions the dress, which is trimmed with novelty silk braid. The neck may be in round or oval outline and, if desired, the skirt may be of contrasting fabric. Medium size requires 3¼ yards 40-inch crepe.

WELL DEFINED EYEBROWS

Here's an ointment for falling brows

The formula frequently given for eyelashes is also an excellent tonic for making the eyebrows grow. I will repeat it here first, and then go on to explain a new way of refreshing tired eyes and removing traces of tears.

The ointment formula is as follows:

Cocoa butter	1 dram
White wax (or paraffin)	4 drams
Lanoline	½ dram
Oil of sweet almonds	4 drams
Perfumed oil	2 drops

This is a heavy cream which is splendid for producing hair. As it contains nothing that could positively injure the eye, I always recommend it for eyelashes. Of course an ordinary hair tonic could be used on the eyebrows, but, as the girl with scanty brows usually has scanty lashes also, this cream will probably be most useful. I have one word of warning, whatever you use here, use only on the actual part of the skin where you want the hair to grow, otherwise you may overdo the treatment and have shaggy brows.

Now for the new remedy to remove all traces of tears. Perhaps, however, some of my readers already know it. You simply use tea, bathing the lids with the hot liquid and then dipping a handkerchief or bit of old muslin into the tea and holding it as a compress for about ten minutes over the closed lids. This does away with the redness and strained, swollen feeling that makes the eyes hurt so after crying. This idea comes from England—naturally the English would find such a use for tea! And, by the way, a cup of good hot tea taken internally is an excellent thing to take if you have been crying; it is soothing to tired nerves, and at the same time a little stimulating.

Freckles—A formula for a freckle lotion will be mailed to you if you send a stamped, addressed envelope.

Mrs. A. H. F. M.—The discharge you mention is not natural and shows there is inflammation. Consult your doctor before such a condition undermines your health.

Minna—Unless you make a strong solution of lemon juice and water it should not cause your hair to be brittle. The proportions are two tablespoonsful of juice, a half teaspoonful of baking soda to each quart of water. Oiling your scalp before the shampoo will not make the hair change its shade.

Miss E. B.—Bathe the eyelids in a weak solution of boracic acid and if the inflammation continues consult your doctor.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Poems That Live

WHEN I WAS ONE-AND-TWENTY

When I was one-and-twenty
I heard a wise man say,
"Give crowns and pounds and guineas
But not your heart away;
Give pearls away and rubies,
But keep your fancy free."
But I was one-and-twenty,
No use to talk to me.

When I was one-and-twenty
I heard him say again,
"The heart out of the bosom
Was never given in vain;
'Tis paid with sighs aplenty
And sold for endless rue."
And I am two-and-twenty.
And, oh, 'tis true, 'tis true.

Will Announce Winners In House Competition

The award of the prizes, that are to be given by the Security Housing Corporation in the contest that was inaugurated for the best plans for small houses, will be made at the exposition today, according to an announcement of officials of the corporation this morning.

Over fifty plans were submitted, all of them of merit and artistic beauty, and these have been passed upon by a committee of three of the leading architects of Los Angeles, and the announcement of the five prize winners today is arousing keen interest not only among the competitors but also among those who have been studying the plans that form part of the Security Housing Corporation's exhibit at the Industrial Exposition.

The amount to be distributed amounts to $310, and besides the money prize the glory of winning against such keen competition as has been shown in this contest is another important factor in the eyes of the contestants.

Imperial Chicken Salad....(I assume there are still a few [illegible] from last Sunday's chicken, which my [illegible]alled for. If not, use a can of boned chicken.) Cut the chicken pieces very small and measure. Mix them with twice their bulk of diced celery, one cooked and chopped beet. Moisten the mixture with mayonnaise dressing and serve on crisp lettuce.

Creole Baked Cabbage—Trim medium size head of cabbage cut in quarters till tender, having the water well salted. Press out all moisture, then put the cabbage through your food chopper. Add to it one tablespoon of butter, two tablespoons of chopped, crisply cooked bacon, two beaten eggs and salt and pepper to suit individual taste. Mix well and turn into a buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes. (Small pieces of butter, dotting the top, will help to brown it over.) Serve very hot.

Kidney-Stuffed Onions—This may sound like one of those "fussy," elaborate dishes which no really busy housekeeper has time to prepare—but actually it is an easily prepared luncheon (or supper) dish. Buy from your butcher two sheep's kidneys, wipe and skin them, then slice them finely. Season the sliced kidneys with one-half teaspoon of salt and a pinch of pepper, and use them as a filling for four large onions which you have previously boiled (skinned) for fifteen minutes, and then hollowed out in the centers. Place the stuffed par-boiled onions in a baking dish, add one cupful of either brown gravy or canned clear soup, and bake for two hours in a moderate oven. Serve hot. They will taste good to the school child or business person, for they are very nourishing.

Steamed Chocolate Pudding—Cream together one-half cup of granulated sugar and one heaping tablespoon of butter; stir into this one well-beaten egg, one cup of sweet milk, three cups of bread flour which has been sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder, and add two squares of unsweetened chocolate which you have melted in a small pan with one teaspoon of vanilla, then turn the mixture into a buttered baking-powder can (or any tin mold which has a tight-fitting cover), and sink this filled can in a large saucepan containing several inches of water; let the water boil up around the mold (weighting down the mold if necessary) for two hours. At dinner time turn the hot pudding out onto a dessert plate and serve with a hard sauce made by creaming powdered sugar and butter together, moistening with a little cream and beating till fluffy. (Any desired flavoring may be used in this sauce.)

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

SPIRITUALITY VS MATERIALITY

Vitamins—No. I

Note.—There will be a series of these articles on vitamines. The data I have taken largely from the books on the subject written by Sherman and Smith, and McCollum. I shall run two or three a week until they are finished. Cut them out and save them so that you can read the series altogether after it is finished, because the subject is important and the articles will not be available for distribution afterwards.

There has been so much written on vitamins that you all know they are certain elements in food whose chemical composition has not yet been determined, but whose presence in the diet is absolutely necessary for growth, proper functioning and mintenance of health.

Let me assure you, vitamins are not a fad nor an obsession, even though they have been put in a little disrepute by the wild advertising of some commercial concerns which have been putting up what they call vitamins in concentrated form. While scientific research has shown that drug store vitamins are valueless, it is showing all the time that the vitamins of fresh foods are not fads nor obsessions, but absolutely necessary for health.

Strangely enough, it was the study of certain diseases which finally led to the discovery of these elements so necessary to maintain health. Let me give you a little history of them. I'm sure it will interest you.

You all know of the terrible disease scurvy. It was this disease which first called attention to the fact that the diet must contain some fresh food principles.

Scurvy used to be very common in sailors on long voyages, soldiers, prisoners, and others who were deprived for a long time of fresh foods. It is not uncommon now in babies, and many adults probably have it in a mild degree.

As early as 1720 it was written that, while neither medicine nor surgery could give relief in scurvy, green vegetables, oranges and lemons could cure this "dreadful evil."

In 1804 the giving of rations of lemon juice was made compulsory in the British navy, and scurvy became a comparatively rare disease among the British sailors.

Then it was discovered that another terrible disease which caused an inflammation of the gastro-intestinal tract and the nerves, with final paralysis, was due to a diet deficient in certain elements. That disease is beri-beri. It used to be a scourge in Japan, China and the Pacific Isles, especially among the poorer classes whose diet consisted chiefly of polished rice and fish. It was thought it was due to an unknown germ. Beri-beri was so common in the Japanese navy that from twenty-five to forty per cent of the navy force was disabled by it.

In 1855 Takaki became convinced that the disease was due to the diet. Barley was substituted for a considerable part of the polished rice, and beri-beri practically disappeared from the Japanese navy.

A Dutch investigator, Eijkman, endeavoring to find out something about beri-beri and whether it were due to the diet of polished rice, found he could produce a very similar disease in fowls by an exclusive diet of polished rice. He furthermore discovered that he could prevent and cure this disease in fowls by feeding them with the rice a very tiny amount of polishings—thus showing that there was an anti-neuritic element in the polishings (which contained the germ and the bran) of a different nature from the carbohydrates, protein, fats or salts, the known elements of foods. He gave this information to the world in 1897.

After Eijkman's experiments other investigators verified his work and efforts were made to isolate this vital anti-neuritic element. These investigatorrs found that it was soluble in water, that it would resist heat to a certain extent.

Side Talks

"THE PERFECT SPORT"

This morning I received a letter from an old schoolmate. And as I finished reading it my mind went back to a little episode at the seashore last summer.

We were sitting on the sand watching the children romping in the water, when a sturdy three-year-old tripped and tumbled headlong into an incoming wave. We were prepared for howls of dismay, but as he righted himself, he turned shoreward with the dearest smile on his streaming little face.

"That," said his mother, "is the hardest thing I have to teach my children—to 'come up smiling' after defeat."

Which brings me to my letter.

A Father Worth Having

In the small mid-western city where she lives, my friend's husband ran for mayor. Prospects of success seemed excellent and the hopes of the family ran high. But on election day, by one of those voting freaks that make politics such an uncertain game, he suffered an overwhelming defeat.

"I shall always remember election night," wrote my friend. James came home with deep circles of fatigue under his eyes, but the gamest smile in the world. He was glad, so he said, that the long strain of the campaign was over, and by way of relaxation he insisted on taking us all to the pole game at the armory that evening. As he left the room, laughing and joking with our little girl, our twelve-year-old boy turned to me with something like awe in his face. 'Mother,' he said, 'isn't Dad the perfect sport!' "

He'll Never Forget

To have seen the highest honor the city could confer bestowed upon his father would have been glory indeed for the boy. But I believe that man did a bigger thing for his son in the splendid example he set of a contest fought hard and fairly, and a defeat met bravely and undismayed.

"'Tis not in mortals to command success, but we'll do more, Sempronius, we'll deserve it," was the admonition of a philosopher of other days, but it is one of the hardest lessons youth has to learn—youth that is impatient and intolerant of half measures or defeat. To be a good loser is not an easy role for a child. To make excuses, to protest, to sulk, to quit the game, all seem to be the natural reaction to defeat. It is a fortunate girl or boy who learns this lesson at home where a wealth of protective love surrounds him to ward off the hurts.

I know a mother who plays parchesi and old maid and other childish games with her youngsters quite often in the evening, not because she enjoys it, but because it creates an opportunity for developing plucky losers and modest

TODAY:—St. Louis Air Hopes; The Coming Meet.
TOMORROW:—Defending the Pacific; Industrial Co-operation; "Civilizing" the Coast.—By Ellis H. Martin, San Francisco.

By W. F. SULLIVAN
For International News Service

ST. LOUIS, May 28.—Combining recognition because of its central geographical location, this city is making a strong bid to become the aviation center of the United States.

The idea to make such a bid was born at a meeting here of the St. Louis Air Board, attended by 335 prominent officials and citizens, which was called to make preparations for the International Air Meet to be held here next October. The city will spend $200,000 in providing an appropriate field to acommodate the big aerial gathering.

Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, United States Navy, told those present at the meeting that this city is "admirably" located to become the aerial center of the country.

"You in St. Louis are admirably located to become the focus of the highways of the United States," Rear Admiral Moffett said. "One of your resources, which, perhaps has been overlooked, is the Mississippi river. Has the possibility of a seaplane air mail service from New Orleans to Chicago via the river and St. Louis ever occurred to you?"

Seaplane travel, according to the admiral, will become a big commercial factor within the next few years because of the adaptability of the water planes to landing.

"The seaplane in many ways has greater advantages than the land plane," he said. "Flying over water the pilot has always a place to land in case of trouble. With the land plane trouble may mean a landing on a mountainside or in a treetop. It is reasonable then to suppose that seaplane travel will become one of the great commercial factors in the next few years. St. Louis is equipped to handle this class of aviation as well as the others."

Admiral Moffett paid a tribute to the recent feat of the army aviators in making the trans-continental non-stop flight and declared it brought out that it is time for the United States to push the development of aviation for its own protection.

"The feat of Kelly and Macready in flying across the country was significant," the admiral continued. "First of all, it was a wonder piece of aviation, and for it the navy takes its hat off to the army.

"But beyond that there is a deep significance to the welfare of the country. They flew 2,600 miles without a stop. Within 1,600 miles of St. Louis there are foreign islands which might be the bases of bombing expeditions in wartime. From them fleets could be sent out to bomb St. Louis off the map. That possibility was demonstrated by the two army fliers.

"It is partly for that reason that we should stand behind the army and navy in their efforts to develop aviation."

Airplanes landing on the tops of buildings and likewise "hopping off" from the roofs of commercial structures may be common sights within a few years, according to information which the admiral gave to the meeting.

"I have been asked," he said, "whether it is possible to land aircraft on the roofs of buildings in the downtown district of a big city, for example. I will answer the question in this manner.

"On the aircraft carrier Langley we have landed DH's, which have a relatively high landing speed, within forty feet. This is accomplished by the use of arresting devices which bring the airplane to rest almost immediately.

"Similarly, we have catapults by the use of which it is possible to launch planes into the air without any long run, such as we are accustomed to associate with the take-off. By means of the device we have launched into the air craft weighing as much as 6500 pounds."

THE GLENDALE

"The Famous Mrs. Fair," a film version of the famous stage play of the same name, is now showing at the Glendale Theatre. It is a Metro release, directed by Fred Niblo, and concerns the attempt of said Mrs. Fair, who has won fame through war work in France, to continue her work upon her return home.

In this attempt Mrs. Fair goes on a lecture tour, neglecting her family—and the point the author draws from the resultant situations is that a woman cannot have both a career and a home.

The superlative cast seen in this film includes Myrtle Stedman, Marguerite De La Motte, Cullen Landis, Carmel Myers and Helen Ferguson.

INSPECTING THE FUEL LINE
Forestalling the Danger of Gasoline Leaks

The gasoline supply pipe, from rear tank to the vacuum tank, is or should be supported upon one of the side frame members by means of metal clips, so firmly that it cannot "work" or "rub" in such a way as to wear itself through and open up leaks, and to make sure that the fuel line is all right it is well, once in a long while, to follow it along carefully from one end to the other, tightening the clips where necessary and making sure that no chafing is taking place between the pipe and anything else. Copper tubing is of very soft metal and it does not require much abrasion to wear it through. Be sure that the pipe does not touch any sharp metal edges and that no control rods, springs, wires or the like can come in contact with it when under vibration. While making this inspection it is a good time to be sure that the main gasoline tank is perfectly secure in its supports, which generally take the form of iron straps fast to the rear of the frame and encircling the tank. Drawing the ends of the straps together by tightening their nuts is the method of tightening. If shims are used between the straps and the tank, be sure they are in place. A tank that is loose is very likely to spring leaks, as it is then subject to severe strains.

MORE MILEAGE WANTED

N. P. S. writes: My car is in perfectly good running order, but I cannot make more than sixteen to eighteen miles per gallon of gasoline. Can you tell me what the reason is for this?

Answer: We cannot answer you intelligently because we do not know what make and motor of car you refer to, but in a general way we may say that you have not much to complain about as to fuel economy, as the mileage you are making would be considered at least fairly good for almost any car other than, perhaps, a very light four-cylinder model. For the average car eighteen miles per gallon is excellent practice, rather better than one can expect for short-run service. If you will tell us what car you are driving, we can be a little more explicit, but you are not doing badly as to fuel economy if your figures of sixteen to eighteen miles per gallon refer to average service the year around.

OPENING THROTTLE DOES NOT INCREASE POWER

V. McS. writes: When I start my car up a hill or run at more than thirty miles an hour, there is spitting or popping in the carburetor and I get no increase of power from the engine by opening the throttle from half to full. How can I remove this trouble?

Answer: Firing back into the carburetor usually results from the fuel mixture being too lean—not enough gasoline for the amount of air taken in—and our first thought is that the amount of gasoline which your carburetor passes is restricted in some way, with results that become noticeable when the engine's fuel demand is high. You may find that there is dirt in the carburetor passages or in the filter screen at the gasoline inlet, or it may be that the vacuum tank does not handle sufficient gasoline. We believe that if you make the fuel supply adequate your engine will not backfire and will give progressively increased power as the throttle is opened.

COMMUTATOR GIVES TROUBLE

H. T. J. writes: I had the commutator of my generator dressed down carefully on a lathe until it is very smooth. After running an hour or so it becomes very black, and each morning I have to clean it with a rag before it will charge. How can I remedy this condition?

Answer: We suspect that this armature must spark badly to produce such a blackening of the commutator, and if there is any way you can run it so that you can find out as to this, you had better do so. If it does spark badly it is most likely because the brushes do not make a first rate contact, either because they are not well fitted, or because the brushes themselves are of poor quality material, and perhaps are not pressed upon the commutator with sufficient force by the brush holders. Are you sure that the commutator was smoothed with sandpaper after it left the lathe, and that the brushes were fitted so as to touch over their whole end surface? As soon as you get the commutator so that it will keep clean, we believe the generator will pick up without any trouble.

IS CHARGING CURRENT TOO HEAVY

H. T. J. writes: I have the third brush of my generator set quite a way ahead, and when the car is running about eighteen miles per hour the ammeter hand goes past twenty, or clear across the scale. Is this charging current too heavy?

Answer: We think that it is, but you had better consult your instruction book and see what the charging current should be for your battery. Ordinarily, anything in excess of twenty amperes is more than should be permitted, and is likely to overcharge the battery, as well as possibly to overheat the generator armature and blacken the commutator.

DINNER STORIES

Young Hughson, at college, found himself rather short of money, and, accordingly, he wrote his father the following letter:

"Dear Dad—I am writing for a check rather sooner than I expected, but you see several bills have come in at once—books, laboratory fees, games sub., etc Please send it off as soon as possible.

"Your affectionate Son."

The father replied:

"My dear Son: I received your letter today, and am sending you the check you asked for. I was at college myself, once, you know. With love, DAD."

"P. S.—Is she good looking?"

Two grouches met by accident in a restaurant, according to London Answers, and the following conversation ensued:

"Know anything about music?"
"No."
"Got any views about the new development in art?"
"Not any."
"Think you could settle the League of Nations problem?"
"I do not."
"Believe you can pick out the next Dery winner?"
"I don't."
"Know the true inwardness of the drama?"
"Know nothing about it."
"Fine! Come over to my house some evening and we'll have a pleasant chat together."

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY'S WATER PISTOL

"Nurse Jane, I think I am going to have a very wonderful adventure this day," said Uncle Wiggily one morning, as he hopped from his hollow stump bungalow.

"Indeed, and why do you think that?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper, tying her tail in a double bowknot, for she was going to sweep the parlor.

"Oh, I don't know," answered the bunny rabbit gentleman, with a polite twinkle of his pink nose, "only I just feel that way. I'm sure I shall have a most remarkable adventure."

And, surely enough, he did. I shall tell you about it.

Uncle Wiggily hopped along, looking this way and that way until at last he came to the little babbling brook of water.

"I shall stop here and get a drink and then hop on to my adventure," thought Mr. Longears. As he stooped over to lap up some of the cold, sweet water, all at once he felt a splash in his face, and back he jumped in surprise.

"Hello!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "Some one is throwing stones in the brook and they splashed me. However, I dare say it was an accident. I'll get my drink and hop on for an adventure."

But a second time he felt a dash of water, this time in his left eye, and it caused him to blinkety blink.

"Here! Who is splashing me, if you please?" asked the rabbit uncle. "Who is throwing stones?"

"No one, Uncle Wiggily," answered a jolly voice. "It's just Bully and I. We were trying our new water pistols and I guess we squirted on you."

"I guess you did," laughed Uncle Wiggily, as two froggie boys, Bully and Bawly No Tail, hopped out from behind the bushes. Each froggie had what seemed to be a little stick of wood with a rubber ball on the end.

"What have you there," asked Uncle Wiggily, curious like.

"Our water pistols," answered Bawly. "We found some hollow reed sticks, fastened our rubber balls on the end, and so we made water pistols," the froggie boy explained. "Look, Uncle Wiggily."

As Bawly spoke he squeezed the air out of the rubber ball on his hollow stick. The open end of the stick he put in the brook. As the ball swelled out again it sucked up water into the reed. Then when Bawly squeezed the rubber Uncle Wiggily suddenly cried "Ouch!"

"What's the matter?" croaked Bully.

"Bawly squirted water in my eye," laughed the Bunny gentleman, but he didn't mind it at all, feeling very jolly about it.

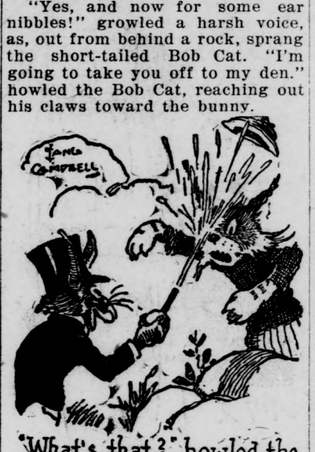
"Those water pistols are remarkable," said the bunny uncle. "I must make one for Nurse Jane. She can water her flowers with it, and, when she isn't using it for that I can shoot mosquitoes. Yes, I must make me a water pistol."

"You'll have lots of fun," croaked Bawly as he and Bully hopped on to the hollow stump school taught by the Lady Mouse.

Uncle Wiggily hurried to the 2 and 3 cent store and bought himself a rubber ball. He found a hollow reed stick, as the froggie boys had done, and soon he had made himself a water pistol that would shoot a long distance.

"Now for some fun with Nurse Jane," whispered Uncle Wiggily. "This will be a jolly adventure. Now for some fun!"

"Yes, and now for some ear nibbles!" growled a harsh voice, as, out from behind a rock, sprang the short-tailed Bob Cat. "I'm going to take you off to my den." howled the Bob Cat, reaching out his claws toward the bunny.



"What's that?" howled the Bob Cat.

"Wait a moment, if you please," spoke Uncle Wiggily politely, and with that he pressed the rubber ball of his water pistol.

"Zip zippie!" shot a stream of water in the Bob Cat's eye.

"Wouchie! Zowie! Zoop!" howled the Bob Cat. "What's that?"

"Water from my pistol. Wait a moment, here's some more," laughed Uncle Wiggily, squeezing the rubber ball again. But the Bob Cat didn't wait. Instead he ran away and his funny little tail got all wet from the bunny's water pistol.

"I told Nurse Jane I was going to have a wonderful adventure and I did!" chuckled Mr. Longears as he hopped home with the water pistol, and he felt so jolly he even squirted a few drops on Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. But she only laughed and told Uncle Wiggily to stop acting like a boy. So everything happened for the best, and if the evening paper doesn't jump off the front stoop and hide behind the milk bottle until it's time for breakfast, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily jumping the fence.

BILLY WHISKERS

That Bobbie was getting tired of Billy Whiskers there was no mistaking, and was crazy to trade him for Mrs. Ward's Teddy, that he thought was the most beautiful dog he had ever seen.

His hair was as thick and yellow as a lion's mane, and it stood up around his face in the same manner, while his eyes were a clear topaz yellow that matched his hair exactly.

On this dog Bobbie had always laid envious eyes, but Mrs. Ward would neither sell nor give him away, as he was a very valuable watch dog, having once caught a burglar and held on to him until someone came, though the man beat him shamefully over the head to try to make him let go his hold. Besides, he kept all the stray cows and horses out of her yard, and she always felt safe to go away and leave the house alone if Teddy was there to look after it.

Bobbie and Teddy were great friends and had many romps together. In fact, Bobbie saw as much of the dog as if he had been his own, but he was not and that made all the difference to Bobbie.

One day when Bobbie came from school, Teddy ran to meet him, as he often did, looking more handsome than ever. It seemed to Bobbie that he could not stand it unless the dog belonged to him. And just when he came to this onclusion, a happy thought struck him.

He would trade Billy Whiskers for Teddy! For he had heard Mrs. Ward say only the da before that Billy was the cleerest goat she had ever seen, an the only thing she had ever known that could get ahead of Bobbie Banks. (What she meant b that, he did not know.) o now was his chance. He woul trade Billy off for Teddie.

As you know, to ink was to act with Bobbie, so e threw his strap of books on e porch and ran to the stable w re Billy was with Teddy at his eels.

(Tomorrow you hear how Bobbie made his t de.)

SEA TRIP HALTS WINNING STREAK

Mal de Mer Hampers Players In Sunday Contest at Catalina

The Catalina nine sent the Glendale ball team home from the Island yesterday afternoon on the small end of a 7 to 3 score.

Manager Walt Heidler says his lads are better baseballers than sailors and that the trip put their stomachs in a very unstable state of equilibrium.

Alexander, big brother of "Alexander the Great," pitched great ball for the Islanders.

Walt says the Glendale boys had a fine outing, aside from a slight touch of nostalgia, complicated by the eerie motion of the sad sea waves. Next Sunday, when they battle Owensmouth in the second volley of the Valley League barrage, they are anticipating a continuance of their interrupted winning streak.

TAGGING ALL BASES

Senatorial errors of commission and omission, plus Sam Jones' pitching, gave the Yanks an 8-to-1 decision over Washington.

Pruett collapsed in the ninth, and the Indians chased over five runs, beating the Browns, 6 to 2.

The Giants made it eight straight by taking their customary fall out of the fanatic Phillies, 12 to 4. Williams got his eighteenth homer.

The Dodgers went into a tie for third place by tripping the Braves in a finely-drawn finish, 6 to 5. Benton's wild pitch allowed the tying and winning runs to score in the ninth.

After spotting the Pirates to a four-run lead in the first inning, Aldridge proceeded to pitch foulproof ball for the remaining eight, but the reform was too late. The Cubs failed to overcome the handicap, and lost, 4 to 2. Meadows was the winning pitcher.

A fighting Frenchman, who traces back his fighting instinct to two marshals of France, and a scrapping Irishman, who might find equally famous fighters in his family tree, who who is content to thank the school of hard knocks for his start in the fight game, are finishing training for their battle, June 2.

And these two fighting machines will battle for no less than the featherweight championship of the world.

The French lad is Eugene Criqui. The Irish, descendant of Erin, but native son of the U. S. A., is John Patrick Kilbane.

Be the fighting instinct hereditary or acquired, both have it.

And, boy, what a battle they ought to wage.

Kilbane now stands the favorite. And Criqui has no control over one of the reasons. That is the fact that he hails from Europe. History has proved that American fighters, big and small, outmeasure the best Europe can produce, from the old prize ring days down to the debut here of Georges Carpentier.

And on a basis of reckoned skill Kilbane is favored. The champion carries with him what is believed to be a stiffer punch, a bit more science, and the psycological advantage that a champ carries into the ring. He also carries with him the skill and cunning which enabled him to hold hold a title longer than any living man.

Criqui Another Hero

To my mind the Criqui-Kilbane bout was made possible in much the same way as was the Carpentier-Dempsey affair — by the personal popularity of the invader. Carpentier's ring record showed no cause why he should meet Jack Dempsey for the world title. But he was Europe's heavyweight hero and the idol of all France because of his war service. Criqui's case is similar. Criqui laid aside his gloves for a gun the minute war broke. He came out with the left side of his jaw shot away, his nose flattened and one ear mutilated. What prestige he lacked in the ring was forgotten. He became Criqui, the great little fighter for France. The kind of warfare didn't matter.

Criqui is fast and clever. He has a fighting wallop much like Kilbane's. Even Kilbane's enemies around New York will not say that Criqui's is quite as fast or dangerous as Johnny's, however.

The Frenchman has the endurance, too.

His one weak spot seems to be that jaw, which a German bullet shattered. Criqui himself says that it isn't any more tender than it ever was. He does wear a guard about it on training, however, which can be taken for what it's worth.

Kilbane in Shape

Kilbane will enter the ring in perfect shape. I'm sure of that. I've looked him over. He has lost some speed in the decade or more he has reigned. But he seems not to have lost any since he knocked out Danny Frush in seven rounds two years ago. And he had enough then to lick any featherweight extant.

Kilbane's punch is there. He can shoot in that left with deadly precision. Another vital factor in Kilbane's favor is his wind. He still seems to have plenty of it. Age has not bound him in the chest.

Kilbane stops all talk that this will be his last fight, or that he desires to step out by saying that he will not surrender the title or retire until he is knocked flatter than a restaurant turnover.

Both fighters have an added incentive for winning June 2. The ever-challenging, loquacious Johnny Dundee has been signed to fight the winner. Kilbane, in particular, wants to satisfy him.

Regardless of the outcome of the Criqui-Kilbane fight, it must be regarded as another battle of the century. And it looks like another victory for the U. S. A.

FIRE DEPT.'S AIR SHIP TRIED OUT

Machine Is Now Ready for Patrol Duties Around Glendale Region

The aeroplane "Skyscriber," which has caused so much comment in writing on the air, is at present under reconstruction at the Kinner Hangar at the Glendale Airport.

The test flight of the Glendale Fire Department ship was made last Wednesday by Jack Rand. After making a few minor adjustments Chief Lankford and Tom Phillips, who have charge of the ship, took short flights over and around Glendale. The big ship is easily discernible in the air, being fire department red with the letters G. F. D. on the lower wings.

Mr. Grant, formerly a pilot in the U. S. Air Mail Service, has purchased a Thomas Morse Scout ship which is now at the Glendale Airport.

K. J. Crawford is constructing a six ship hangar on the private hangar side of the field.

Correct Address on All Mail Is Urged

Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson has received another communication from the department concerning the great burden imposed upon the "Directory" and "Dead Letter" divisions by mailers who fail to address their mail correctly and explicitly and who also omit the name and address of the sender.

Postmasters are requested to enlist the aid of newspapers in instructing the public as to the need of having every letter and package so prepared that it can be safely and swiftly transported and promptly delivered instead of necessitating a directory search and final consignment to the dead letter division.

POET STOPS SALE

BERLIN, May 24. — Gerhard Hauptmann, Germany's leading poet, obtained a temporary injunction against the sale of letters written by him to Otto Brahm in 1899. Hauptmann found the letters being auctioned for their autographs by a Berlin antique dealer.

SPORTS CHATTER

PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

The success of little Bill Johnston, the California wizard of the tennis courts, in Europe, augurs well for this country to retain the Davis cup this year. The first of the preliminary series of this world famed series is to be played at Orange, N. J., July 26 to 28, inclusive, when the famous Australians meet the Hawaiians.

It is the first time that Honolulu has participated in the tournament and much attention is being given to the men from the islands in this their initial appearance. It is not likely that the Hawaiian team can defeat the Australians with such a team as it is composed of, J. O. Anderson, Norman Peach and possibly Gerald Patterson.

At this writing the Australians are undecided as to just which men will make the trip, though Anderson and Peach are expected to participate. Two others are to be named and if he can make the trip Patterson will undoubtedly be one of the four.

These three men are not new to international tennis though with the exception of Patterson none of them have had the experience of those other world famed Australians, Wilding and Norman Brooks. The former was killed in the war and the latter has now given way to younger blood though he is still one of the world's greatest court stars.

Australia in past years has generally been the hurdle that the champion nation has had to jump, but, since the death of Wilding and the retirement of Brooks, the playing strength of the Antipodeans has been considerably impaired. They have a good crop of young men coming along in the Australian states but at this time they are not on a par with the ability of such brilliant men as this country has led by the two Bills—Tilden and Johnston.

Tilden has not shown his true form to date this year and this is probably due to the loss of his finger earlier in the year, though many experts claim this will not be a handicap to him. It is of course early in the season and Tilden has plenty of time to round into condition. Johnston with his tournament play in Europe should return to this country in great shape and should be at the top of his game this year. He has always come on towards the end of the season and has always shown himself a master of the courts, but his work in Europe this year should tend to make his game riper at a somewhat earlier stage than is usually the case.

The Hawaiians have been playing good tennis of late years, but it is hardly likely they will have a team on a par with the strength shown by other countries. The experience this year, however, will be a great help to the men from the Islands, and should act as an incentive to more and better tennis in the "Paradise of the Pacific."

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE.
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

A sports page reader recently asked a sports editor to inform him as to the weights of Corbett and Fitzsimmons when they fought at Carson City. The sports editor frankly stated he did not know for a certainty and had no available data on the subject, the story of the fight in his files having failed to mention this detail. He then appealed to any of his readers for the information. A lot of help came in, but the trouble was that scarcely any two agreed on the weights of the contestants. So the question still is in the air.

There are a lot of persons in these United States who are keeping their eye on Williams of the American Association, who is knocking them out for four bases with considerable regularity. He will occupy the center of interest as long as he holds better or as good as Babe Ruth when he made his record in 1921. So far Williams has a good margin of start on what the Babe had accomplished up to date.

The National Collegiate track meet to be held in Chicago next month is beginning to take on considerable importance, and it seems likely to make a bid ere long for first place with the National intercollegiate meets that have been held for so many years at either Cambridge or Philadelphia. The entries at Chicago this year reach to all four corners of Uncle Sam's country and include teams from such distant points as the states of Washington, Southern California and Texas. It will be a real intersectional meet.

Now that the heavyweights have made a start toward being matched the air is full of rumors and counter rumors, so that each day whose low descending sun sees no arrangements for a fight begun may be accounted as just that much time lost by free advertising to the fighters and promoters. Notwithstanding the fact that Dempsey is next to battle against Gibbons, there is the most persistent talk of a Wills-Dempsey affair. Of course, this match has been talked of for almost a year and nothing has come out of it except a lot of free publicity for the parties concerned, and it may continue merely as a source of profitable press-agenting.

It is claimed that in Humboldt county, California, there are approximately 800 miles of streams in which more or less trout can be caught. Some are excellent and, of course, some are poor, but the claim is to the effect that it is possible to get trout in all of the 800 miles. We don't know if that is something of a record but would be glad to know of any single county in a state that has more mileage in trout streams.

Sewer Conference Is Held in L. A. Today

Heads of the city government, directors and committee chairmen of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, and representatives of other interested civic organizations are meeting today with the members of the Los Angeles city council to discuss the plans that have been formed for connecting the sewers of Glendale with those of Los Angeles, in an effort to reach a final settlement of the question.

Conferences that have been held within the past few weeks have brought the matter to a point where a favorable decision is anticipated at any time now, and every argument will be placed before the Los Angeles officials that will tend to hasten the start of the work as already planned.

Sermon Excerpts And News Notes From Local Churches

CHURCHES of Glendale held solemn, impressive services yesterday, attended by large crowds. Pastors preached on varied topics and special music was provided by soloists and choirs. Herewith are presented brief excerpts from sermons and, too, other church news:

URGES BIBLE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Educational System Is Not Complete Without Book, Is Rev. Cole's View

"An education that leaves out religion is not even half an education, "remarked Rev. C. A. Cole last night at the Central Christian church.

"Altruism and honor and integrity must have underneath them the religion from which they have sprung," he continued.

An education does not have as its aim the making of a living, of money or a name, but a life. It is not to make one superior in caste over another, not that one may gain the power of ascendency over a brother, but to help one to be a friend of man to know how to act toward God and men.

The public school does not fully educate since it leaves out the fundamental of life and right relations, the teaching of religion to a creation that is incurably religious.

"We shall further maintain that the schools should not and cannot teach religion, and that, therefore, the church should prepare to teach it alongside the school and co-operating with the school. This must come in fact or else this nation shall go upon the rocks of infidelity and immorality. We face a crisis at this very time. Educators see it and the church is awakening.

"I hold that our public schools are not educating our children. Not because they are not capable, but because our fundamental basis of American democracy will not permit them to do so. In the very beginnings of our national life we separated the church and the state. The state cannot teach religion. It should not do so. It is not a criticism of the public school system that it does not teach it. It is not one of its functions.

Part of Library

"I do hold that the Word of God should be read, without comment, perhaps, in every school of the land. But it should not be taught as a religious text-book there. It is the function of the Home and of the Church to do that.

"And since any system of education is inadequate which does not provide for the training of the religious nature of childhood, it is up to the Church to give this instruction. With the home influence on the one side and public school teaching on the other, the Church School is the keystone that forms the perfect arch of education.

"A great new day is dawning in the matter of education. With the leading educators of America appealing that the church shall accept in a generous and efficient manner the responsibility which belongs to it, with a moral 'letdown' that has alarmed those who are interested in public and private morals, with a church awakening to its task, it seems that we will soon be putting into the training of our youth that which will result in the highest type of life the world has ever seen.

"Despite its defects, in the face of the fact that the Bible has largely been eliminated from our schools, our educational system is doing its work wonderfully well."

Communism of Early Church Is Discussed

"The Communism of the Early Church" was the topic of discussion yesterday morning in the council chamber of the city hall at the Brotherhood class of the Presbyterian church.

"We read in the fourth chapter of Acts that the Christians of the newly formed church sold their possessions and brought the prices of the things, which were sold, and laid them down at the apostles' feet and distribution was made unto every man, according as he had need," reported Rev. Keith L. Brooks.

"This portion of Scripture certainly will not support the modern doctrine of the universal brotherhood of man and the teaching of the Bolshevists," he continued. "This was not the brotherhood of man, but believers.

"The newly formed church created a situation calling for extraordinary measures. The Jews, who accepted Christ, were ostracized and deprived of work so that the Christians had to raise money to provide their needs.

"A plan of this kind could work only under such conditions. There was nothing of modern communism in all this. There was no abolition of the right of property."

AT CASA VERDUGO

Rev. J. C. Livingston preached at both services yesterday of the Casa Verdugo Methodist church. His morning subject was "Valleys Full of Ditches," while his evening topic was, "The Stillness That Speaks of God." Mrs. Waldo Winger of 407 Fairview avenue sang the offertory solo at the evening service.

LEADS SERVICES

Cecil Albright, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Albright of 118 West Acacia street, last night led the Luther League services at the Lutheran church. The subject was "The Gospel of the Plow."

Silence in Heaven,' Sermon Subject by Rev. W. E. Edmonds

"Silence in Heaven" was the sermon subject of Rev. W. E. Edmonds at the Glendale Presbyterian church yesterday morning. The sermon was based on the passage in Rev. 8:1-5 and was in part as follows:

"God rules in heaven and all beings there are subject to His holy and righteous will. Every harp is silent. Not a hallelujah is heard. The thunders of celestial choirs are hushed. Not a sound invades the stillness. No speech is so eloquent as silence. No measure in all the harmonies of the universe is so impressive as the emphatic pause. Of all the beautiful pictures of heaven, none is so strangely thrilling as this hush of silence for half an hour. The Lord is in His holy temple, let all the earth keep silence before Him. The temple of our purest thoughts is silence.

"If we would learn enduring strength we must dwell much in the depths of silence. Many live too much in the glare of excitement. This heavenly silence may have been like the calm before the storm. Silence and calmness are no guarantee that all is safe and right. It may be only a pause of the forces of providence before conflict and crisis burst upon us. During the silence 'tis well to have anchor ready and soul prepared for the last terrific test. This half hour of silence marks the close of one period of prophetic fulfillment and the ushering in of another. The next great change is about to begin. Heaven waits in silence. Do we realize that we are standing upon the edge of time? Let us stop in the heated rush of life and pray.

"It would seem as if God called for silence in heaven because the most important service on earth or heaven was about to begin. Up from the earth ascends the incense of intercession. God bends His ear to listen to the faintest whisper of His people's prayer. Wonderful testimony to the power of prayer. It takes precedence to the songs of the angels. First silence, then prayer. God's priceless treasures are the prayers of believing, loving hearts. God desires to link every chapter and phase of human history with the name of Jesus and send it by way of the throne of grace.

waits the trumpet call. Our prayer is, Hasten, O Lord, the coming of the day when the trumpet shall sound calling the General Assembly of the Church of the first born. The trumpet is also a signal to advance to certain victory. The trumpet calls either to life or death and it is for each man to answer for himself."

Eternal Life Follows Discovery of Jesus

Preaching from the text, found in John 5:39, "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me," Rev. Henry O. Kringle, pastor of the Concordia Lutheran Church, yesterday said that a man may study the Bible and may learn many useful things, may make himself familiar with the Bible so as to be able to discourse of it for hours, and nevertheless that man may not have found eternal life for his soul in the scriptures. If a man has not learned from the Bible to find Jesus Christ, he has not understood it and has not found eternal life in it.

"Only when you have found Jesus have you found eternal life," declared Rev. Kringle. "Jesus, the savior of your soul, your righteousness and your life.

"Jesus Christ, born in Bethlehem, and crucified on Calvary, is God over all, blessed for ever and is come to the world to save sinners."

Musical Program by Hand Bell Ringers

The English Hand Bell Ringers assisted the musical program last night at the Presbyterian church. This quintet is composed of Arthur C. Andrew, Ernest F. Andrew, Percy W. Andrew, Miss Amy E. Andrew and Miss Minnie Andrew.

The regular organ recital at 7:15 o'clock by Oscar F. Walton of the Bible Institute included: "Ancient Melody," "Evening Prayer" and "Meditation."

Two selections were sung by the church quartet which is composed of Mrs. F. M. Retts of 114 West Park avenue, Miss Elizabeth Mottern of 211 North Adams street, J. Malcolmson Huddy of Pasadena, and Robert F. Maile of Los Angeles. One of their numbers which seemed to be especially appreciated was "America, the Beautiful."

Rev. Louis Tinning was in charge of the services. Stereopticon slides were shown of the Presbyterian African Mission.

SPECIAL SERVICES

Young people of various local churches met for special services at 6:30 o'clock last night in the social hall of the First Baptist church. They were addresseed by Miss Amy Lee Stockton, evangelist, who closed her campaign for souls at the evening service.

PATRIOTISM AND RELIGION, THEME

National and Social Life Faces Decay Without Faith in God

"Patriotism and Religion" was the subject of the sermon yesterday morning at the First Congregational church.

The services were attended by a number of members of the local post of the G. A. R. and W. R. C.

"We cannot give our best to our country unless we have received something from God!" exclaimed Rev. C. M. Calderwood. "On the other hand, as we strive to live the largest religious life, we find that we must assume those duties that are commonly called patriotic. No one is serving God who is not discharging his duties to his community and country.

"We must associate religion with our patriotism. Without religion our national and social life will soon fall into decline and decay. A nation's hope is in its morals and ideals. Its hope is in God, the center of our religion and the source of moral idealism.

"Without true religion a nation soon goes down to ruin. Every buried city and empire was slain by some imperfection of the mind, some crime of the heart, some weakening of the soul. The decay of cities and nations has been the decay of manhood, the loss of moral earnestness and relgious enthusiasm. It has not been so much the decline of art and literature as the decline of character in men and women.

"The greatness of a nation is the greatness of its citizens. The decline of righteousness is the prophecy of the decay of genius and the eclipse of the nation.

"Democracy is a failure only when religion is left out. National wealth and intelligence without religion will wreck a nation more quickly than poverty and ignorance accompanied by a deep religious life."

Tells Obligation to Church's Pathfinders

"George Washington's army was once discomforted because three days without whisky. What then must have been the consternation of three kings of the Orient when, with their armies, they found no water?"

This startling interrogation was part of the sermon yesterday morning at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church.

"Well might the prophet command 'Get thee to the gods of thy fathers!" exclaimed Rev. J. C. Livingston. "If all the devout energies of our being have been laid at the altars of other gods, why not expect consolation and help from the gods of the world in the time of our great emergencies?

"There may be no cloud, or sign in the sky today, but blessed are those, who, when the torrents of blessing come—are prepared to receive them. Thank God for the noble patriots of the Cross who in the past made our day blessed by the trenches full of divine favor left for us. We are under obligations to a noble army of pathfinders who, by faith in God and the spirit of His Son, gave to us our heritage."

Hold First Services In New Church Home

The congregation of the Broadway Methodist church held its first service yesterday in the new quarters, the American Legion hall, which is being used temporarily. This was the first morning service the church has held since its organization six months ago, and the attendance at both the Sunday school and preaching service was the largest yet held by this young organization.

The pastor, Rev. L. J. Millikan preached a strong sermon on the subject "The Uplifting Power of Love," and emphasized the truth that true love is evidenced by the service it renders. Jesus evidenced His love for mankind by the greatest possible service and sacrifice—the giving of His life.

At this hour the church was the recipient of two splendid gifts from one of the official members, N. J. Haynes—a communion service consisting of seventy-two individual glasses and four collection plates. These gifts were received with much applause.

M. E. SERMON TOPIC

"God's Care for His People" was the subject of the sermon by Rev. V. Hunter Brink yesterday morning at the Central Avenue Methodist church. His sermon at the evening service was addressed especially to young people and commemorated the anniversary of the establishment of the Epworth League.

MEDICAL MISSIONS

"Medical Missions at Home and Abroad" was the topic of discussion by the Christian Endeavor society last night at the Congregational church.

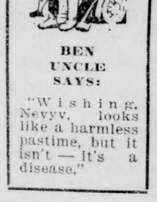
"I Am Too Nervous To Carry a Revolver"

Weekly Health Talk No. 31
By Drs. Eble & Eble, Ds.C.



BEN UNCLE SAYS:

"Wishing, Nevyv, looks like a harmless pastime, but it isn't — it's a disease."

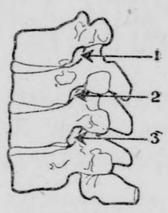
"Always I have slept with a revolver nearby, but last night I couldn't sleep. Sometime after midnight I heard a noise and I located it beneath a lower floor window, and shot. I heard one agonized yelp and next morning found a neighbor's dog shot through the back just below the shoulders. I remember now that the noise was that dog gnawing a bone, but I was so nervous and worn out I shot first. I'll never carry a revolver again."

There is a nervousness that is mental and is healed by rest and relaxation, and there is the nervousness that is due to physical causes which make it impossible to relax, or rest or sleep. The man who shot the dog in a fit of nervous excitement had previously spent the best portion of the night in a vain effort to relax.

His troubles were clearly physical and are easily reached by the nerve restorative methods that are peculiar to chiropractic.

Chiropractic, you know, is essentially a science for restoring normal nerve conditions. In nervous disorders of physical origin we feel it is safe to say that chiropractic has never had a failure.

KEEP YOUNG FACTS FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE



No. 1—Nerve opening narrowed to 50% normal. (Healthful impulses can not travel pinched nerve lines.)

No. 2. — Cartilage badly thinned opening 20% normal. (Life flutters feebly on nerve lines so squeezed.)

No. 3—Normal life impulses through such an opening keep you young.

The chiropractor by adjustments of these movable vertabrae correct diseases of the head eyes, ears, nose, throat, arms, heart, lungs, liver, stomach, pancreas, spleen, kidneys, bowels and lower limbs.

ILL FOR TEN YEARS

"My daughter was ill for ten years with nervousness, Rheumatism complicated matters. Once she was bedfast seven months. Medical experts said her case was hopeless. Chiropractic was thought worth a trial and in the first few adjustments a change in her nervousness was noted. In four months she was normal." —William R. Watson, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1223M.
